NEW EPIDEMIC

A Physician Explains

LACK of sunshine and a bad winter have been blamed for most of the infective illnesses that have been, late lately. One trouble which has been no prevalent of late as to be almost in the nature of an epidemic is in connection with inflammation of the sinuses, or canals, which run through the bones of the face.

SINUS Affections

These sinuses are fairly easily affected when inflammatory conditions spread from the nose and throat.

The one that passes across the forehead—the frontal sinus—runs just below the eyebrows, and inflammation from the nose may travel up into it.

Painful Pressure

The result of infection in this area is acute pain and tenderness on pressure over the inflamed canal. Probably much of this pain is due to the fact that the bone cannot expand and the pressure inside at times becomes well-nigh intolerable.

Applications to the inside of the nose give relief, but sometimes when the inflammation becomes chronic or recurring it is necessary to have recourse to surgical treatment and have the sinus opened up.

No home remedy does much good in these cases, and it is wise to seek medical advice.

The antrum is another of these air passages that have been so frequently affected during the past winter and spring. This cavity is in the upper jaw, just behind the cheek bones, and has a communicating channel with the nasal passages.

When infection gets to this area there is pain and tenderness to pressure of the finger on the outer side of the nose and cheek bone.

Inhale This

There is often a considerable discharge through the nose like that which comes after a cold has reached the thick, stuffy stage. This discharge is much worse when the head is bent downwards.

When the antrum is affected it is often necessary to open it up and wash it out, but milder cases sometimes clear up by using a simple inhalation like Friars Balsam.

A teaspoonful of this added to a pint of boiling water gives off rather pleasant fumes. The best way to use it is to put a towel over your head, covering the jug or bowl at the same time, and inhale slowly through the nose for three minutes.

It is sufficient to do this three times a day. But, like most other troubles of this nature, you should consult a doctor.

At the back of the throat where you can't see it because its opening is above the soft palate, there is another passage way leading to the inside of the ear—the Eustachian tube.

Quite often it is the seat of catarrh which may have come either from the throat or from the nose. Catarrh swells up the lining membrane, and when that happens deafness frequently results. Air cannot enter the tube and this stops the drum from vibrating properly.

Disease may spread up into the middle ear, and when the latter is acutely affected there is intense earache. The drum rapidly becomes red and inflamed and, if surgical treatment is not available in the early stages, the drum perforates and there is a discharge. This is the typical "running ear" which has been so common lately.

A still further complication takes place when the disease spreads to the bone behind the ear—the mastoid, where it is not uncommon to find that an abscess has formed in that area. This often requires surgical treatment to prevent extension of the mischief elsewhere.

Running ears and inflammation of the mastoid are essentially conditions for a doctor's care. You are taking unnecessary risks by trying to treat these troubles on your own.

But when the acute stage has passed and the running still continues, you can do much to hasten healing by paying great attention to hygiene of the outer ear passage.

FALSE GLAMOUR

Minnie Pallister on

The Eternal Triangle

NO one can be surprised at the bitterness in a correspondent's letter. She says: "I should like your opinion on the subject of a friendship between a married man of fifty and a single girl of twenty-five."

Here we have the eternal triangle, and the eternal problem. The wife, objecting to the fact that her husband spends his spare time with the younger woman, and busy expenditure presents for her, although he can never afford presents for his own family, is accused of being jealous.

"Is this honorable towards the wife who has devoted over thirty years to his home and comfort?" the writer concludes.

Love Knows No...

If two people, whether married or single, suddenly fall in love, it is difficult for them to be guided by considerations which should weigh with them.

If, however, the younger woman is not really in love, if she feels the slightest elation in taking a man who is married to someone else, then she is beneath contempt.

In the large majority of these cases, the solution rests with the younger woman. She cannot help being attractive, certainly the older woman cannot be blamed for feeling attracted, although, unfortunately, long years of married life cannot in themselves ensure a continuance of affection.

The man who finds that his attentions are accepted is strongly tempted to carry on the friendship. It is up to the younger woman to refuse to accept them.

The man might ask whether he is "playing the game" with a comrade who has faced life with a partner.

The wife might wonder whether her own heart and whether it is all she might be to her husband, or if she has taken him for granted and ceased to make any effort to keep herself attractive.

But the only person, it seems to me, who can really solve the problem is the younger woman. If she thinks a moment she must realise how unfair and dishonourable her conduct is, when stripped of its false glamour.

To-day's Recipe

Date Gingerbread

STONE some dates, weigh four ounces after stoning and chop them. Mix a teaspoonful of dark treacle with a quarter of a pint of warm milk, add four ounces pure all-vegetable fat, blend together well, and add a small teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda. Put a pound of flour into a bowl, add the dates, eight ounces of brown sugar, and half-ounce of ground ginger; mix well together, stir in the treacle mixture, and then two beaten eggs. Beat well, pour into a baking-tin which has been well greased with vegetable fat, and bake in a moderate oven for an hour.

Note to MODERN HOUSEWIVES

IF you have ever been worried about the dust and dirt that blow into your windows from the streets, here is the very thing for you.

This is a special domestic air conditioner, that can be fitted into your fireplace, and not only fulfil the important function of cleansing and cooling the air that you breathe in the summer, but take the place of a fire in the winter.

The design of the apparatus is pleasantly simple, and would fit in with any type of decoration. It can be had collared in a number of colours.

This type of apparatus would undoubtedly make an invaluable addition to the modern home.

For SWIMMING and TENNIS

THE one thing essential to the comfort and full enjoyment of bathing, so far as the modern woman is concerned, is a cap that really refuses to let in water.

How can you enjoy a swim thoroughly if you are sadly conscious that each dive or plunge under the waves is adding to the ruin of your new "set"?

Here, then, is the perfect solution to the problem—a new bathing cap which, by means of an inner flange, forming an air-pocket, keeps the hair absolutely dry. You see the idea sketched on the left above.

Treat yourself to one of these caps this season, and you'll not only look smart in the water but—and it's even more important—you'll look tidy and well groomed when you come out. Available in nine colours, the cap costs 6s. 11d.

Alongside the bathing cap is sketched the latest device for the well-turned-out tennis player. This is an eye-shade and bandeau in one. Made in pretty flowered voile, it is simply put on at a becoming and, if you like, is slightly rakish angle, and the scarf ends tied in a knot at the back. Practical and very effective, for the handkerchief piece at the back keeps all one's stray curls in place and the peak gives adequate protection for the eyes.

Another advantage is that, when not in use, the stiffened peak lies completely flat and so can easily be packed—a point to be considered in view of holiday week-ends.—E.G.

SCOTTSBORO NEGROES FACE NEW RETRIAL

Five Year Fight For Vindication
NEW TRIAL STARTS THIS WEEK

Decatur, Ala., July 1.

With one more exciting chapter written into the five-year history of the notorious Scottsboro assault cases, six of the nine Negro defendants will be brought to trial once more here this week.

At the end of the trial of Heywood Patterson, which resulted in a 75-year sentence, the trials of the six were continued due to the illness of a witness considered material by the defence. Only seven of the defendants were arraigned at the special session of the court here in January.

It was at the end of the Patterson trial, while the defendants were being taken to Birmingham, where they are held in jail, that the most recent episode—an attempted break for liberty—occurred.

Ole Powell, one of the nine defendants, was shot and critically wounded by Sheriff J. Street Sandlin after the Negro had slashed the throat of a deputy sheriff in his attempt to escape.

NEGROES SITTING TOGETHER

The break was made as the motor car which Sandlin drove, and in which the deputy, Edgar Black, rode, reached the crest of Lagoon Mountain, between here and Birmingham. Black and Sandlin were in the front seat of the sheriff's car. Powell, Andy Wright, and a third Negro were in the rear seat.

Sandlin said he saw Powell slash at the deputy, and in the rear-view mirror caught a glimpse of Wright preparing to make an assault on him. Sandlin said he turned and shot Powell once in the head. He halted the car and his men brought out from a state highway patrol car that was following.

Black was not seriously injured, and Powell recovered after weeks in a Birmingham hospital.

TWO NOT ARRAIGNED

Powell and Andy Wright were the two Negroes who were not arraigned at the recent trial, their counsel declaring they were juveniles at the time of the alleged attack. On March 25, 1931, and were not subject to the power of the court.

All others were charged with this

New York "Noblemen's Club" to Ban Bogus Titles

New York, July 1.

NEW YORK society, which harbours in its midst some 3,000 titled men and women, extended an amused welcome to-day to the "Noblemen's Club."

The founders of this novel institution describe it as a "clearing house" for the purpose of banishing from polite circles "bogus" noblemen and nobleswomen who prey on the credulity of American hostesses and business men.

At the club's headquarters, amid the hum of many conversations conducted in precise English, tinged with Italian and German accents, Baron Giorgio Suriani di Castelnuovo, after explaining that his own title dated back to the days of Philip II, stated: "There are from 700 to 800 qualified potential members of our club—marquesses, barons, counts, even dukes and princes, with, of course, the corresponding number of women titles."

"We who are genuine are burning with indignation at the injustice done to our prestige by the activities in New York of fraudulent 'noblemen' and women falsely claiming titles."

The baron declared that the club proposed to launch a campaign for the enactment of a law making it a criminal offence to appropriate titles.

TITLES AND PUBLICITY
"We shall make things very uncomfortable for any claimants to nobility who cannot produce our card of membership," he added.

He concluded by pointing out the great benefits which the new club would confer on national advertisers who, when a member attached his or her name to a brand of condensed milk or whisky, or to a cosmetic, could be sure that the title used was authentic.

Secretary of the club is Baroness Catherine Henkel Gebhardt, whose family, it is explained, was originally honoured by Maria Theresa, Empress of Germany from 1717 to 1780.

Roy Wright, Charlie Weems and Willie Robertson.

Lieut. Gov. Thomas E. Knight, Jr., attorney general at the time of the first trial, will head the prosecution. It will be assisted by Melvin Hutson, local solicitor, and members of the attorney general's office.

Judge W. W. Callahan will preside at the trials, which are expected to begin about July 15.—United Press.

U. S. MAY ENLIST G-WOMAN SQUAD IN CRIME DRIVE

By MARY KNIGHT, who was until recently United Press Staff Correspondent in Hongkong

Washington, July 1.

G-Women may become a potent factor in the battle against crime, in the opinion of J. Edgar Hoover, director of the U. S. Bureau of Investigation.

"G-Women are indeed a possibility of the future," he says, "There is much that they can do. They are already playing a conspicuous part in the smooth-running organization of this department. They can be counted upon to handle not only details but important major problems in a crisis sometimes better than men."

Hoover, the bachelor man-of-affairs who amazes Washington society by his ability successfully to avoid matrimony, is launching a war against crime and he may resort to G-Women to help him win the final victory. They won't necessarily be called on to do strong-arm work, although some even will be fitted for that. They will use their hands and be put through as rigorous a training school as ever the men have experienced.

CRIME COSTS ESTIMATED

"Crime like charity," says Hoover, "begins at home. No American home is free from it. Last year the minimum crime figures topped 12,000 murders and an estimated total of 1,445,581 major crimes. This, incidentally for whatever anybody may think it is worth, is costing the American citizen the medium of $120 a year. Our annual crime bill is in excess of $15,000,000,000."

"If a typhoid epidemic broke out in a city, endangering the lives of citizens, thousands of volunteers would gallantly rush forth to risk their lives in an effort to protect their homes and loved ones against the ravages of such a plague. Crime is an even greater

Without waiting to become G-Women, the average ABC woman has a big job in preventing a crime that may begin right in her own home. Education of her children is the first fundamental. Hoover believes. The proof that crime begins at home, he says, "comes in the fact that 20 per cent. of our crime is committed by persons not yet old enough to vote, by those not even out of their teens and who are not past high school age and ought to still be under the active management and responsibility of the home. From simple, if you like, ABC-women, the modern woman with her wits about her can work into a first class G-Woman. It is her business to remember that crime begins in America to-day in the cradle, and that the greatest influence toward eradicating that condition is the hand that rocks the cradle."

Hoover believes in parole but only for first offenders.

PAROLE REFORM URGED

"Heretofore," he says, "this matter of parole has been the domain of the sentimentalists. It is easy to remember the sad face of the man behind the bars and to shed a tear in the knowledge that he is separated from his freedom and the little woman and kiddies—but why not remember the sprawling form of a murder victim upon the floor?"

"Our records show that 3,576 members of the desperate criminal group have at some time or other felt the mercy of parole or probation or even pardon. It so happens that on numerous occasions criminals have been arrested for new crimes before law-enforcement officials have been notified that the prison gates had been thrown open from a previous sentence which they were supposed to be serving."

"That, in a nutshell," concludes the director of the Bureau of Investigation, "is the story of a national disgrace which has been brought about by this country's debauchery of sentimentalism and clemency."—United Press.

Radiation That Kills All Germs

Chicago, July 7.

A barrage of radiation which apparently destroys germs floating in the air of hospital operating rooms has been described by Dr. Deryl Hart, surgeon in Chicago, Duke Hospital, Durham, N.C.

"Operating room infections, which were fairly common before these tubes were installed," Dr. Hart reported in the June issue of the Modern Hospital, "practically disappeared."

"Improvement in the entire convalescence was good. There was less post-operative pain; the general condition of the patients improved, and the hospital stay was shortened."

"Contaminated air cannot longer be ignored in the operating room. If it is ordinary healing cannot be expected to obtain in all surgical wounds."

Previously, Dr. Hart declared, even under the best conditions the number of organisms in the air has been sufficient to contaminate, all exposed wounds, instruments and supplies, despite precautions of washed air, thoroughly cleaned rooms and nose and mouth masks worn by surgeons and attendants.

The apparatus hangs like a chandelier over the operating table, with rays radiating in the form of a hollow square about a central light. The radiation is an effective germ-killer at a distance of five feet or more, tests showed.

Since the radiation produces a slight reddening of the skin, like sunburn, persons in the room are equipped with protective covering, including goggles of plain glass, impermeable to the radiation.

"Wounds in animals were exposed to the radiation for periods varying from 30 to 90 minutes," Dr. Hart reported, "without apparent damage. Healing in fact seemed to be more rapid than where the radiation was not used."

"After satisfactory experimentation with animals, operations were then performed on patients. From the first the results were striking."

"While the bacterial radiation did not eliminate more than 80 to 10% of the bacteria in the extreme corners of the room, it did kill practically all the bacteria in the air about the operative wound, supply and instrument tables."—United Press.

RELIEF

New York, July 1.

Julius Caesar and Abraham Lincoln both receive workmen's compensation benefits from the New York State Insurance Fund, according to a press release from that organization.

DRIVEN OUT OF TOWN WITH HIS FRIENDS

Los Angeles, July 1.

WILLIAM HAINES, the film actor, has been the victim of a mysterious attack by a mob of 100 men and women near Manhattan Beach.

After severely beating Haines and a companion, Jimmy Shields, the mob pelted them with tomatoes and drove them and 19 friends from the town.

A society known as the "White Legion" seems to be mixed up in the affair. Several men in the Manhattan Beach area say they are members of the Legion and admit that they had a hand in the disturbance.

"BLACK LEGION"

There is another organization called the "Black Legion" which may have some connection with the "White Legion."

A message written in human blood was received a few days ago by the Detroit police, who are inquiring into the activities of the "Black Legion." It stated "Lay off the Black Legion.—The White Legion."

Mr. Haines says that he does not know the reason for the mob's attack.

"It was a lynch mob all right," he said. "Some wild rumour must have stirred them up."—Reuter.

Blonde Girl Spy Arrested

Paris, July 1.

LYDIA OSWALD, blonde girl spy, who was released from the naval prison in Brest last December after serving a nine-month sentence for espionage, has been arrested in Turkey.

She is in jail, with a Swiss journalist named Nauerberg, in the little town of Mamhatia.

It appears that Lydia Oswald and Herr Nauerberg were motoring through Turkey on their way to Iraq and China. Swiss Legation officials who are trying to secure their freedom believe that the two motorists may have entered a military zone by mistake.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

MARKET UPWARD
YESTERDAY

New York, July 15. (Swan, Culbertson & Felt.) Dow Jones summary of yesterday's market:—The market to-day was upward with trading on the heavy side. The session was featured by the turnover of large blocks of low-priced utility securities, especially Commonwealth & Southern. The gains were well sustained in spite of intermittent periods of profit-taking. The steady demand for railroad stocks, particularly Rock Island issues imparted strength to the entire list. Utility, steel, chemical and oil shares advanced, but the gains were erratic. Copper stocks have shown but little change. In the bond market, Corporation issues were higher, but Government bonds were weak. Stocks on the Curb Exchange were irregularly higher.

S. C. & F. New York office cables: Stocks: The moderate realising sales were well absorbed and prices look likely to move higher. The book value of Adams Express issues was $15.75 per share on June 30th. The American Telephone Company earned $2.42 per share for the quarter ended May 31 as against $1.72 during the corresponding quarter of last year. The United Corporation earned 5 cents per share for the quarter ended June 30 as against 2 cents the previous year.

Cotton: The favourable Government weekly weather report was negligible in its effect on the market. Farmers are now complaining of insect damage to their crops. The selling to-day was attributed to one operator, who sold 40,000 bales, but this was well taken by the Trade. There is some belief that the Government average estimate is too low. "Spots" and the textile market are firm.

Wheat: The weather is somewhat cooler, but showers have been only local and damage reports continue. European crop reports are unfavorable. The market is nervous and unsettled.

Corn: There is no relief and excessive heat continues. The reports of heavy deterioration are conflicting. No relief is foreseen.

Rubber: Aggressive trading was checked by the labour outlook. Shipments of castings during May totalled 5,631,961, whilst production amounted to 4,979,093.

S. C. & F. Wall Street Journal morning comment:—The low liquor consumption is hurting whiskey manufacturers. There is increasing investment interest in American Telephone shares. The rumours that the International Telephone & Telegraph Company may resume its dividend payments are probably premature. Some speculation is being done in Baltimore and Ohio and Illinois Central stocks.

Powder Worked
Wonders

Every sufferer from stomach trouble knows that although his condition may not be very serious yet, it will soon get beyond his control if neglected. Apathy and neglect have landed many a stomach sufferer with gastric and duodenal ulcer which might never have developed if prompt but simple measures had been taken. One of the best and surest precautions is the regular use of Maclean Brand Stomach Powder, which has brought back the joys of a good healthy digestion to thousands. "I suffered with Duodenal Ulcer for the past 11 years," says Mr. F. A., "but when I purchased a bottle of Maclean Brand Stomach Powder it worked wonders. I cannot thank you enough." Think of the new-found health that prompted that letter from a man who used to suffer as you may be suffering. Maclean Brand Stomach Powder will "work wonders" for you. Get a bottle to-day—the one with the signature "ALEX. C. MACLEAN." Never sold loose—only in bottles in cartons (powders or tablets). If any difficulty in obtaining write to:—Banker Co., Ltd., P. O. ZORIC

It's like a story of adventure. The way chemists and engineers experimented and worked to perfect this marvellous drycleaning system. But there's no mystery about the marvellous things Zoric does for your clothes. It searches out hidden dirt—cleanses the fabric ever so gently, ever so thoroughly. It perks up the nap, brings colour back to bloom, puts that new-day softness into woollens, restores the show-window luster to silks and satins. But doesn't leave a trace of odour. Sounds almost unbelievable? Then try Zoric—and see!

RUSSIA'S POLITICAL EVOLUTIONConsiderable prominence has been given in the world press to Russia's proposed new Constitution, containing a revised expression of the Soviet's ideas or ideals of how the Communist State should be governed. The first obvious comment which suggests itself is that the official admission of the necessity for reform implies that the previous order fell far short of the millenium which the Bolsheviks had promised the country. If the proposals put forward are actually brought into operation, many forms of liberty not previously enjoyed will be permitted. It has, of course, always been difficult to discover what is taking place behind the scenes in Russia, but this much at any rate is known—Communism is the only political belief that has been tolerated, while liberty of speech and freedom of the Press have been denied the people, and there have been,
moreover, systematic campaigns
for the extermination of religion.
In the matter of political belief,
Communism is to remain the only legal form, but numerous concessions are promised in the way of liberty, including the free practice of religious observances. It is further proposed that asylum shall be granted in Russia to foreign political leaders persecuted by their Governments, although it is not made clear whether such asylum is to be offered to those of other than extreme Leftist views. White Russians, it is safe to assume,
would never be welcomed back;
nor, can we imagine, would any refugees whose political opinions clash with those of Moscow's leaders. Until the new Constitution is actually working, it would be futile to attempt to assess the real value of the concessions promised. It is one thing to construct a Constitution on paper, but quite another to apply it, even in spirit. Yet there may well be the promise of better days in the proposals now put forward. The mere fact that they are made is something to the good. From time to time during the past three or four years there have been many indications that the Russian conception of Communism is not working as had been hoped; and here and there it has been deemed advisable to compromise with original ideals, even to the extent of adopting capitalistic concepts.
The plan fact seems to be that Russia is at the moment passing through a period of political evolution, in which the most glaring defects and shortcomings are being corrected as they become exposed. We may therefore expect to see, by a gradual process, a greater measure of liberty for the masses, the raising of the general standard of life, and anTHE average Englishman

NOTES OF THE DAY

YACHTING

The trade revival is having a great effect on yachting in Britain.
According to reliable reports yacht builders have been busier during the past winter than at any time since the Great War. The sport is generally regarded as a luxury which only men with very satisfactory bank balances can indulge in, but apparently the number of such fortunate individuals has increased considerably and the present racing season promises to be one of the most brilliant ever experienced. At the Royal Harwich Yacht Club Regatta, which was held from the sixth to the ninth of June, there were some wonderful craft, which were handled magnificently, the large yachts of the "J" class being greatly admired.Perhaps the most important event of the yachting season this year was the launching of the new "J" class yacht, "Endeavour II", which was designed by Mr.
C. E. Nicholson and built at Gos-
by the nation's leaders. These developments may carry with them an implied condemnation of the practices of the past, but if the realities are faced and a sincere effort made to institute reasonable reforms, those at the head of affairs will be displaying a measure of political wisdom which may result in the general uplift of the nation and an enhancement of its reputation in other parts of the world.Are you an Average
Englishman?are of one, two, or three persons.
He lives in a town of more than 50,000 inhabitants (like nearly half the population).Britain's national expenditure in 1934 was £1,094,000,000. There are 11,800,000 families in the Home Land, so that the average expenditure per family is £330.One pound in every ten of his earnings goes in direct taxation.Every week he spends £1 17s.
on food, 19s. 11d. on maintenance of his home, 13s. 10d. on saving, including for new houses and furniture, 10s. on clothes, 9s. on travel, 7s. 3d. on liquor, 4s. 7d. on miscellaneous expenses, 4s. on smoking, 2s. 6d. on entertainment,
2s. on newspapers and books, 3s.
3d. on sickness, accidents, and insurance.He has three suits, two for work, one sports or week-end suit.
One is probably grey. Forty-five per cent. of the suits sold last year were grey. The second is more likely to be blue than brown.
Thirty per cent. of the suits made in 1935 were blue, 20 per cent.
brown.His overcoat is probably blue or black. Forty-five per cent. of last year's sales were these colours, 35 per cent. grey.THERE is no foretelling men's taste in colours. They change without reason. But so far there does not seem to have been much alteration this year.He buys two pairs of shoes a year, paying 10s. a pair. The soles last him two months.His hat is a nigger brown trilby or a bowler. These types top hat sales with forty per cent. each.Just now he is losing weight.
The average man is 5lbs. lighter in summer than in winter. He visits his hairdresser ten times in summer for only nine in winter;
it makes him feel cool and fresh.He suffers from rheumatism, as do four out of five of his countrymen.Since the slump his standard of living has gone up. How has he spent the extra money?Twenty-six point nine per cent.
of the population have increased their expenditure on home necessities, 21.13 per cent. on saving, 17.24 per cent. on charity, 13.39 per cent. on hobbies, 11.56 per cent. on children, 9.26 per cent.
on luxuries.Take the typical case of a man who has spent money on home things, whose income has increased by £50. He spent £9 11s.
on better clothes for himself, £9
6s. on better clothes for his wife, £8 14s. on furnishing, £8 2s. on more domestic help, £9 4s. on improving his house, £5 4s. on better food.If he goes shopping he walks twenty feet into a shop and then wants to turn to the right. He looks first at red colours, then green, then orange, last at purple.
His attention shifts about every two seconds.THE films he liked best last year were "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," "Top Hat," "Bright Eyes,"
"The Scarlet Pimpernel," "Sanders of the River," "The 39 Steps."
Four fundamental desires control his life:1. The desire to be more masculine.

2. The desire to be more adequate.
3. The desire for romance.
4. The desire for life.

HOW do his desires display themselves?1. He desires to be more masculine.He tries to cultivate his body by physical exercise and means to be strong and virile.His coat is padded to make his shoulders look broad.He drives hard bargains, not so much to save money as to prove himself better than his opponent.
When he takes his wife to a restaurant he is much more fastidious than when alone.2. He desires to be more adequate.He buys a larger car, a more expensive radio than he can afford.
He buys expensive things not only to impress his friends, but to impress the salesman.

3. He desires romance.

He buys a car because it looks romantic, borrows a book because of its romantic title, goes to the cinema to see alluringly named films.4. His desire for life becomes stronger every year.After thirty-five he begins to take little aches and pains more seriously. He drives less recklessly, saying that he is saving petrol and wear and tear.He gets interested in health exercises and foods, in safety devices on things he buys. He likes reading "How I did it" interviews with centenarians.

HE would be willing to commit a murder. If he knew that he could not be found out, for £20,000, to have his hair dyed green for £8,000, would sell his chances of life after death for £3,000, would agree to death in fifteen years for £10,000, wants at least £100 to parachute from an airplane 3,000 feet up.His conversation centres chiefly round business and family, but also includes sport and high spot politics.As he goes to bed he cleans his teeth, which are not so good as they would be if he used them enough on hard, gritty foods.Well, how near the average are you?

THE KING LEADS FASHION

By "Guardsman"

IT was a sunny May day, and King Edward, looking from his window, thought it just the day for the wearing of a straw hat. He put the thought into action and went to a brilliant society function wearing the first straw hat seen in London this summer.The effect was immediate—Straw hats, say the London leaders of fashion, are going to come back into a favour they have not known since the War days. Two thousand extra hands have already been engaged to cope with the orders that are expected to flood into the hat-making towns of Britain.The King has led fashion before, when Prince of Wales. There was,
for instance, a style of tying a silk scarf which a year or two ago was all the rage among smart young men about Town. The scarf the Prince wore during a cold spell was a polka-dot blue silk square, which he tied by folding in half and passing the twoends through the loop—drawing it closely round the neck.

FAIR ISLE ART

There was the fashion of the Fair Isle golf sweater, which created a sensational sensation when he first wore it at St. Andrews fourteen years ago.The sweater the King wore on that occasion puzzled most of the people who either saw it or read a description of it afterwards. Generally it was regarded as a souvenir of the visit to Japan he had paid not long before. The second guess was that it was a gift from some Roumanian peasants. Actually, it was knitted in the Fair Isle from traditional patterns, which have been held to date back to the days of the Armada.At any rate the Prince, as he then was, wore this striking sweater foran hour on the links. That brief hour brought a boom in Fair Isle sweaters, with much profit to the makers.It was the King who, while Prince of Wales, brought back the bowler hat to a favour which had declined sadly after the war, when many men chose to wear soft felt hats.In the hunting-field he turned out one day at Melton Mowbray wearing the skin-fitting hunting shirt of bright yellow which gentleman farmers of the shires wore a century and a half ago. That revived another old fashion and did a spot of good to a trade which needed a fillip at that moment.Once at Le Touquet he appeared on the links in black and white check trousers, a sleeveless jumper of a delicate shade of salmon pink, and a shirt and collar of bright blue. That created a sensation akin to the one created at St. Andrews. The next day aeroplane loads of similar apparel were being rushed to Le Touquet, and were being snapped up eagerly by those who wanted to follow the Prince's rather daring fashion lead.

GLENGARRY REVIVAL

Wherever he has gone abroad the King has led the fashion of the moment. Thus when he went to the Cape some years ago and got up-country there came down to Durban and other centres urgent orders for formal clothes from farmers who had given up all ideas of such things for years.It was the same when he went to South America, where one immediate result of his visit was a great rush of orders for evening dress on pure English lines. His wearing a Glengarry bonnet in Canada some years ago led to a widespread revival of this form of headgear.Some of the fashions the King when Prince of Wales showed a mind for were distinctly startling, innovations which made the experts of Savile Row sit up and take notice.There was one occasion, for instance, when he went to some boys' club boxing championships wearing a double-breasted dinner jacket, a soft shirt and soft cuffs, and a soft collar, plus a pullover in grey check. That was a fashion that was not generally adopted afterwards, nor, of course, was it ever intended to be.Some fashions that the King leads undoubtedly are seriously meant.
Already the most versatilely dressed man in the world, he once declared that if it would help the British Empire one tiny bit he would only be too happy to wear a different suit of clothing for every single individual he had to meet.He is like that—British trade and its welfare is one of the very real things of life to him, and he is always thinking how this or that trade can be taken out of the doldrums into which it has either fallen or that may be threatening it.Trade means employment," says the King in effect. "Fashions mean employment. I can do to help trade and bring more work to the people of Britain I intend to do."

Formation Of Ladies' Double Tennis League Is Suggested

Ex-Boxer's 30 Days' Fast To Keep Fit

New York, June 22. Harry Wills, a former U.S. boxing champion, has just ended his annual fast. Every year Wills goes without food for 30 days because he thinks it is the best way to keep fit. He has been doing it for 25 years—even when he was in training for a big fight. In spring Wills has a hearty meal and then for the next month lives on nothing but hot water. Now at 44, he is fit enough to give many of the present-day heavyweights a hard fight.

FULL TEAMS FOR BIG TENNIS ENCOUNTER

C.R.C. VERSUS RECREIO

(By "Veritas")

Chinese Recreation Club and Club de Recreio have announced their teams for to-morrow's important "B" Division tennis match at Causeway Bay.

Recreio will make no changes from the side which yesterday defeated C.R.C. in the first round.

L. A. Carvalho and A. M. Oliveira, J. J. Remedios and L. F. Ribeiro, and W. A. Reed and A. E. Xavier.

Chinese Recreation Club will turn out the following pairs:

Lee Yu-wing and Lau Man-chung, Lu Tak-lam and Luk Chun-cheng, and Tsui Ping-fan and Ng Kam-chuen.

This team has already performed for the C.R.C. this year, although Leung Ping-chiu is a notable absentee. Both teams are particularly well balanced which will contribute towards a very fine match.

The encounter will take place at Causeway Bay and is certain to attract a number of spectators in view of its importance.

The match will be specially reported by "Veritas" of the Telegraph.

EASILY DEFEAT C. C. C.

Shock For K. C. C.

Club de Recreio yesterday overcame the first big obstacle in their quest for the "B" Division tennis league championship, but the real test comes to-morrow when they play Chinese Recreation Club (1). Victory for either team is a guarantee for the title.

Only J. W. Leonard and Y. Hachima offered any resistance to the well-balanced Portuguese team yesterday. The well-known couple won two sets, but the rest of the team could make no impression and conceded all their sets to leave Recreio comfortable winners.

Willie Reed, the Interport hockey player, and J. Xavier gave an astonishingly fine display for the visitors, actually defeating Leonard and Hachima six-sets in addition to securing the other two sets without being extended.

GRIM STRUGGLE

There was a grim struggle for points at the Kowloon Cricket Club where H.K.C.C. were the visitors. The first three sets were drawn and, although four of the nine sets were halved, at the close of the second round the teams were three-all and the decision was not reached until the last set in which Gray and Crawford had an unexpectedly easy win over V. R. Gordon and A. C. L. Fowler.

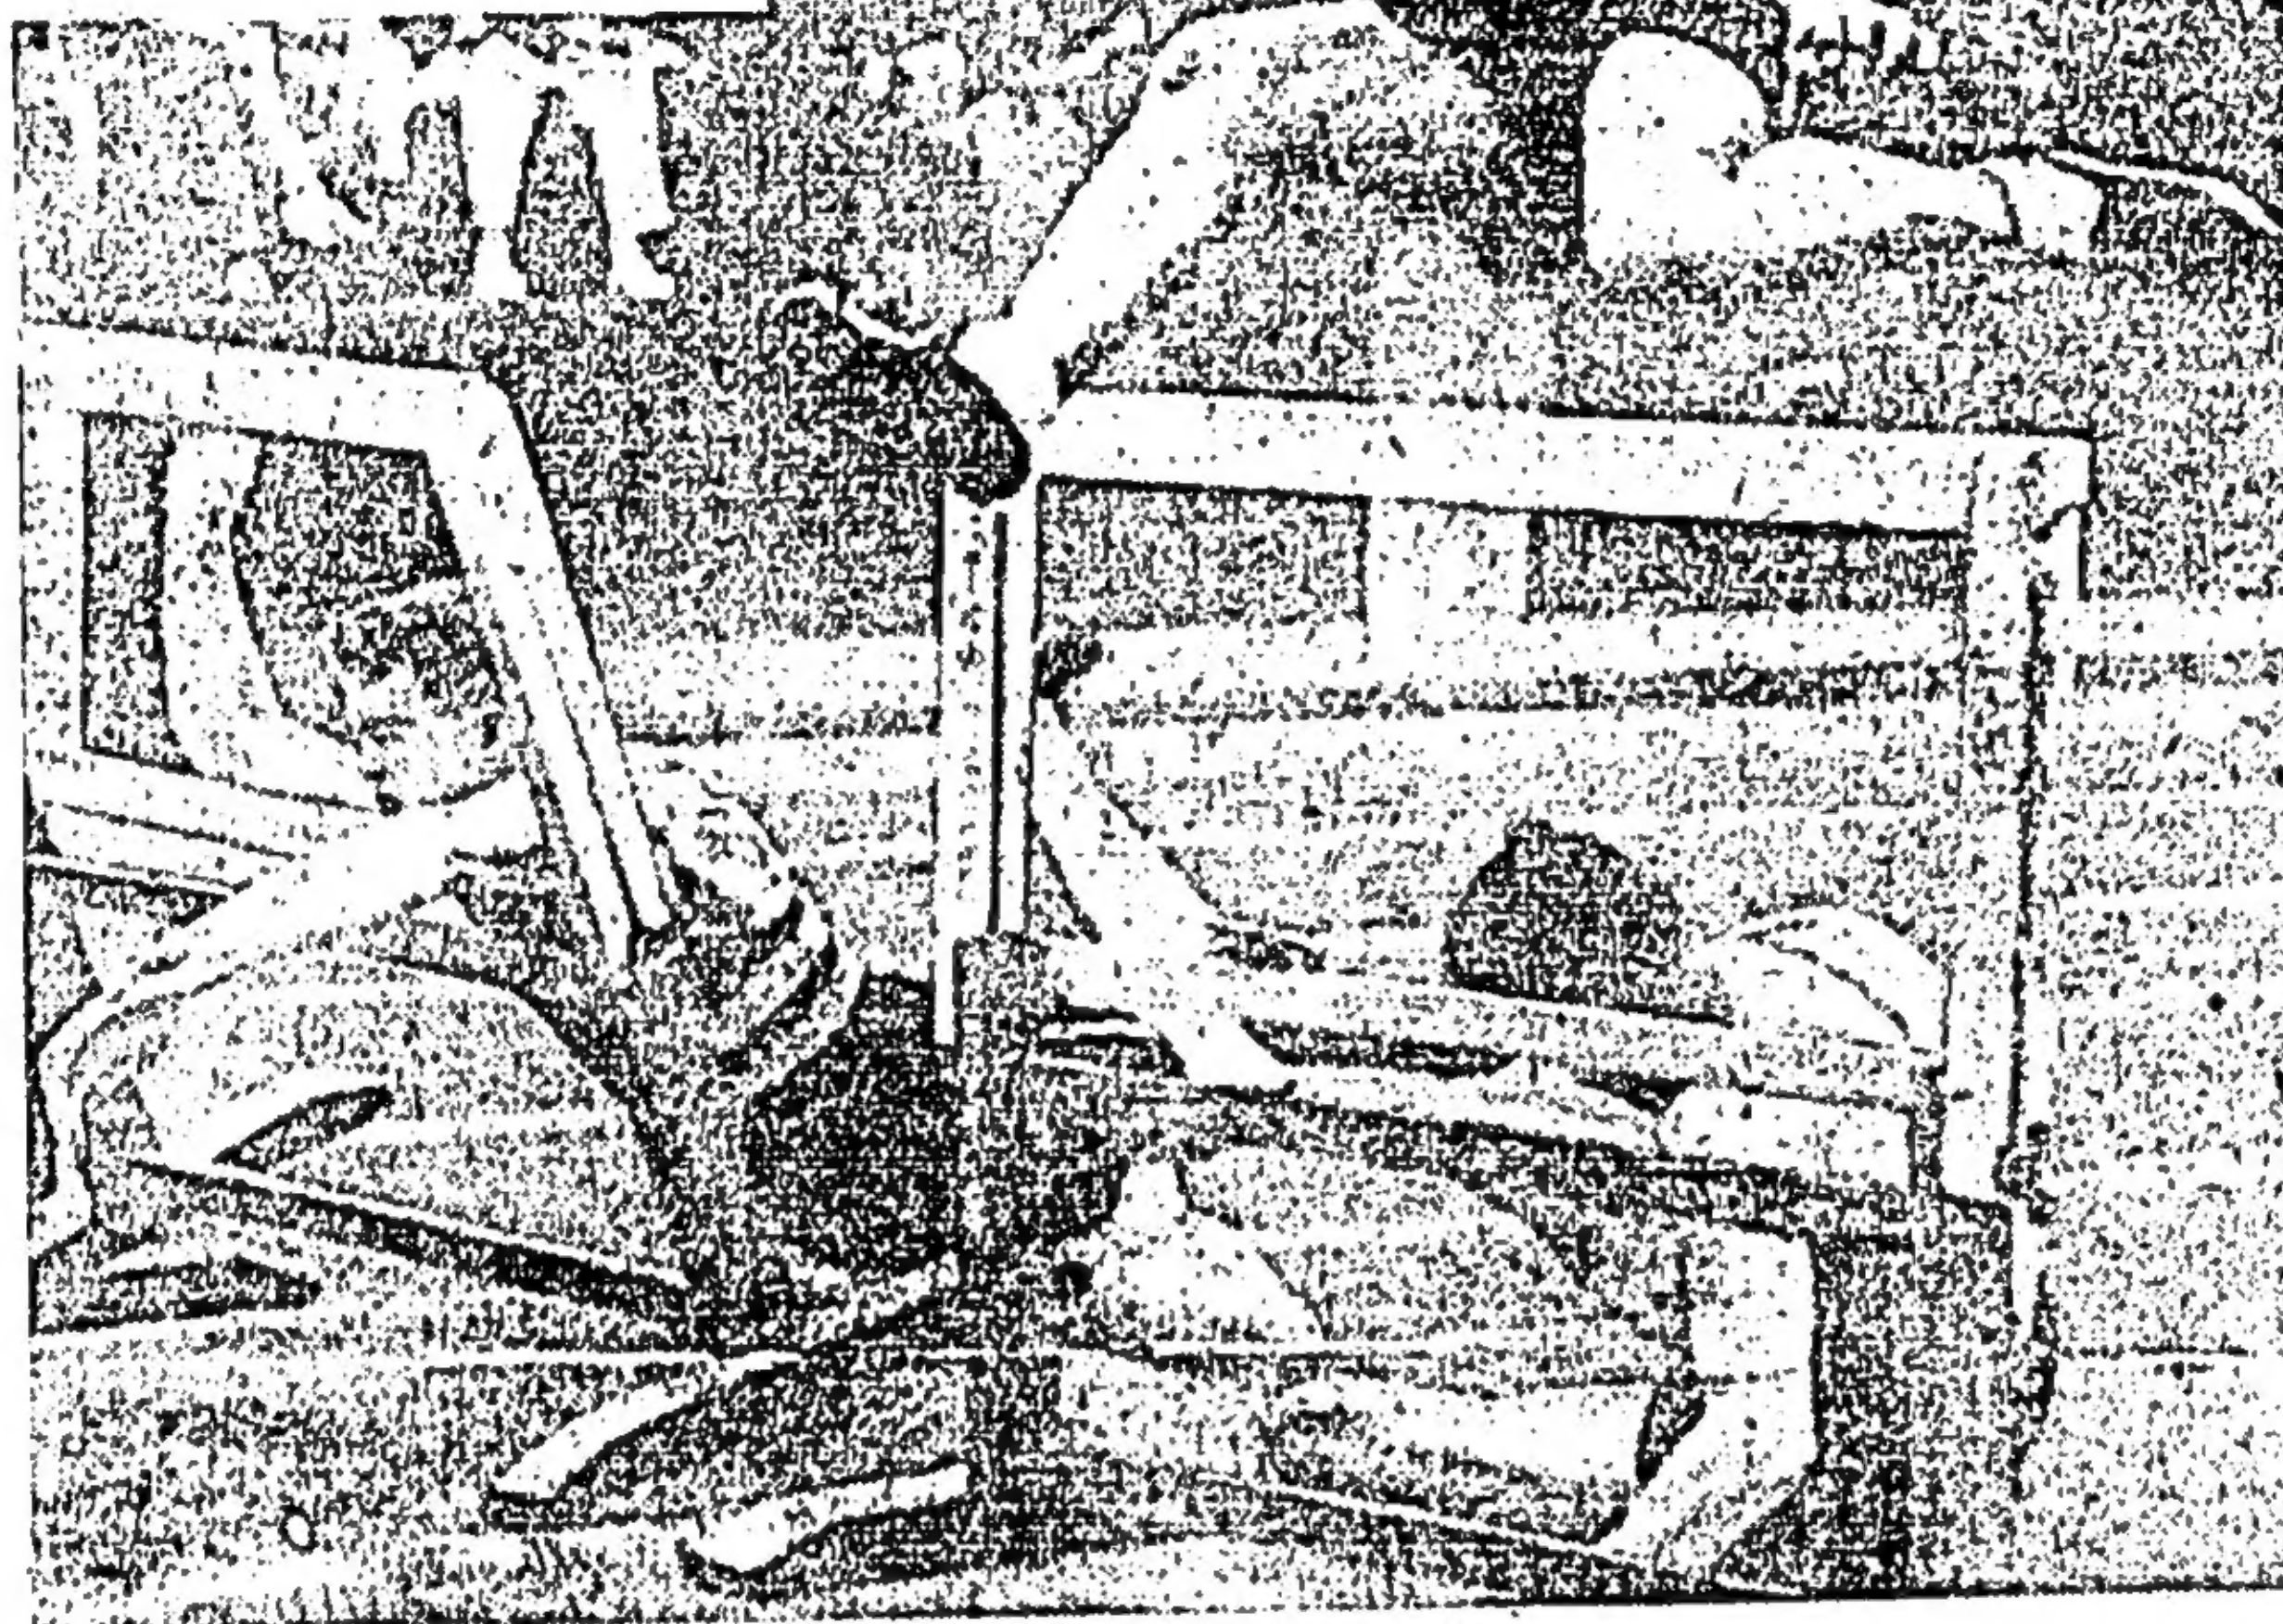

K.C.C. were expected to win fairly comfortably, but the Cricket Club put up a spirited resistance and all but turned the scales in their favour. In the opening set, J. Rodger and D. B. Evans were trailing 1-5 against Gray and Crawford, then won five games in a row and finally halved the set.

The same K.C.C. couple faced a 1-5 deficit in their second set against T. C. Monaghan and G. E. R. Divett, and only by cut-throat play did they manage to recover, win the next five games in a row and the set.

Teddy Ramsey, still feeling the effects of his recent illness, took a couple of sets in which to settle down, but played up well in the third and vital stanza. Burnett was consistently good, and the next five games in a row and the set.

Despite their excellent performance of the previous week, Civil Service found it expedient to change the composition of their pairs against Indian Recreation Club yesterday. The upshot was a nine sets to love victory. I.R.C. were outplayed from the start.

SURVIVAL OF THE FITTEST.—This unusual hurdle-race picture, with a competitor leaping past two rivals in distress, was taken at Annapolis, United States.

Fastest Mile Ever Run In England

WOODERSON DOES 4:10.8 ON GRASS

At the Southern Athletic Championship last month, S. C. Wooderson ran the fastest mile ever recorded in England. His time, 4min. 10.8sec., beat Lovelock's British record by 1.2sec.

Wooderson was running on grass and made his own pace over the third and fourth laps—a truly remarkable performance. Here is a runner who should be able to go with the best in the 1,500 metres at the Olympic Games.

Times returned in other events at meetings last month show that England's Olympic "probables" are now approaching the top of their form and promise a fair share of the track honours at Berlin for Great Britain.

Two of England's best quarter-milers, G. L. Rampling and W. Roberts, running at different meetings, both set up district records, and there was only one-fifth of a second between their times, Rampling's being 48.4sec. and Roberts' 48.6sec.

A. G. K. Brown, who earlier in the month won three events for Cambridge University against the A.A.A., equalling the British 100 yards record, won the Midlands Counties running and half-mile titles at Luton, his times being 22.2sec. and 1min. 38.6sec. respectively. Brown also holds the Midlands quarter-mile title, which was competed for earlier in the season.

Three big meetings, Southern, Midlands, and Northern Counties championships each resulted in a number of new district records being established, besides those already mentioned. Another notable performance was accomplished by D. O. Finlay, the A.A.A. champion, whose time of 14.8sec. for the 120 yards hurdles equalled Lord Burghley's English native record and the Southern Counties record.

Dublin, July 15. Syd Easterbrook and the Irish player, Nolan, led the field at the end of the second round of the Irish golf championship which is being played over the Dolly Mount course. Both players had aggregate cards of 142, while close behind came Bobby Locke of South Africa with 143, and Ernest Whitcombe and William Large (Liverpool) with 144. James Adams, the Scottish champion, and runner-up in the British open championship, although creating a course record of 68 for his second round, could only total 147.—Reuter.

TO-DAY'S BIG TENNIS MATCH

Recreio And S. China

Chief importance concerning to-day's "C" Division tennis is the clash between Club de Recreio and South China A.A. Both teams are as yet undefeated and the outcome of this match will go a long way towards deciding the championship. The only other rivals to these teams is the K.I.T.C. who to-day meet C.R.C.

Recreio are at home and because they boast a team of three equally-balanced pairs they can be expected to win probably by a larger margin than one would anticipate from the records of the two teams.

If Recreio survive this test they will meet their final obstacle next Tuesday when they play K.I.T.C. in a re-arranged match. K.I.T.C., Civil Service, Kowloon Tong, Army Tennis Club and Recreio are expected to win this afternoon, the full programme being:

C.R.C. v. K.I.T.C.
C.S.C. v. University
K.C.C. (2) v. Kowloon Tong
A.T.C. v. I.R.C.
Recreio v. S.C.A.A.

TWO LAWN BOWLS TITLE GAMES

GRIMMITT'S TASK THIS AFTERNOON

Two further matches in the Colony lawn bowls singles championship will be decided this afternoon. A. W. Grimmitt meets C. H. Basto on the Kowloon Cricket Club green, while A. M. Omar plays A. E. Carey on the Takuon Recreation Club green. Other sports engagements to-day include league tennis, described in another column, and swimming gala staged by South China Athletic Association at 7.30 this evening.

players are needed for a team. A league for ladies' doubles would ensure more players receiving a regular game, and would it is felt by several enthusiasts, provide them with more fun and pleasure than that derived from the mixed doubles league. The idea is certainly worth bearing in mind and is worthy of the close attention of clubs and the Association.

Modern science has made it easier for you to— look after your TEETH

OUR teeth in Hongkong to-day are better than they have been for several generations. There is less dental caries in the front of the mouth, and, owing to the new scientific attitude to dentistry, more people are keeping their teeth into middle-age.

Overcrowding of teeth still exists to a large extent. This is due very largely to the fact that the average British head and jaw is long and narrow, and at the same time we have the racial characteristic of large teeth. One hundred years ago you will find in dental records exactly the same complaint.

It would appear then that this is a fact that we must all recognise and make allowances for in families where this national characteristic is strong.

To combat this tendency a new approach to children's teeth has arisen. That is to the spacing of the baby teeth. More and more children from the ages of eight to twelve are wearing plates to stretch and space the upper and lower jaws.

In some instances the milk teeth are removed to allow the permanent teeth to come through in good position. With this treatment it is hoped to avoid the necessity of removing any of the permanent teeth later on to prevent overcrowding. All milk teeth are now treated as serious accessories and are filled in similar way to the permanent teeth.

At the moment in England there are eleven million people able to save teeth during pregnancy. Much avail themselves of dental treatment more of this sort of work should be done in Hongkong.

"A correct diet plus scrupulous cleanliness will ensure good and lasting teeth"

shortage of beds available to the public for serious dental operations. Few people realise that the removal of some teeth means a serious surgical operation and necessitates several days in bed. These cases are, of course, the abnormal ones where there are cysts on the root of the tooth or the roots are badly curved round the jaw bones.

The actual extraction of teeth has altered very little, either local injections of novocain or total anaesthesia by nitrous oxide being given. No experiments on the lines of the dentine application recently proclaimed in America have yet been tried in this Colony.

The filling of teeth has altered in that no attempt is made to kill the nerves of the tooth. A live tooth will retain its colour and its filling.

A tooth that was first killed, as in former practice, was found either to turn black after filling or else to loosen and come away from the jaw after a year or so.

False dentures are now as light and delicate as our craftsmen can make them. They aim at a complete conformity with the patient's own teeth, both as regards shades of enamel and size and shape of teeth.

In the case of front dentures it is now the practice to take impressions of the real teeth before they are removed, and have facsimiles made up in porcelain. These are then fitted straight into the patient's jaw immediately his own teeth have been removed.

In this way the gums close in round the new teeth and you do not get an unsightly gap in between each artificial tooth and the gum. The psychological effect on the patient is also excellent, as many people dread several weeks without front teeth.

The replanting of a patient's own teeth after an accident is quite possible. Where whole teeth have been knocked out and the jaw is not broken, it is possible to replant the teeth immediately and they will grow back firmly into position.

This is of course a god-send after motor accidents or in the case of knocks and blows to athletes.

As an indication of the attention we should normally pay to our teeth is the fact that it has been found that each schoolchild to-day requires dental treatment to an average of one tooth per year.

In our general health we do not expect to be for one year without either cold, cough, or headache—neither can we expect to be without some very slight attention to our teeth during that period. They are dead pieces of bone in our mouths but are alive and need the same watching as our hair or our skin.

Stainless Steel Statue

San Francisco, July 7.

Working with a medium never before been tried, Beniamino Bufano, San Francisco sculptor, to-day was nearing completion of a 14-foot stainless steel statue of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, former President of China.

The statue, when it is completed late this summer, will be presented to the city by Bufano and by the Kuomintang, Chinese Nationalist Party, and the W.P.A. art project, which have been financing the work.

In fashioning the replica of the Chinese patriot, Bufano is portraying a personal friend. According to the sculptor, he lived with Sun Yat-sen for four months during which time he was commissioned to do a portrait of the president. Bufano is using that portrait as well as other drawings and some photographs in fashioning the statue.

Though the sculptor has himself done some research in metals in the past seven years, he credits scientific investigators in various steel companies with providing the information which makes possible his use of the new stainless steel for sculpture.

"Because the old master could not know what we now do about metals, they were unable to use them for artistic purposes." Thus Bufano explains the heretofore lack of experimentation with stainless steel.

The head and hands of the statue, already completed, are of red granite. The body and arms are being beaten of stainless steel.—United Press.

Children Dropped In River After Last Kiss

MARKET gardeners working in a river-side plantation at Evesham, Worcs., recently saw a smartly-dressed woman push a perambulator through two meadows to the side of the River Avon.

She stopped, lifted out a boy and a girl, kissed them and then dropped them into the river. Then she jumped in.

The gardeners ran to the river bank and succeeded in rescuing the girl, who is two years old, and they recovered the dead body of the boy, aged 11 months.

The woman's body was taken from the river about two hours later. Mr. William Davis, captain of Evesham Town Football Club and English Amateur International goalkeeper, of Cowley-street, Evesham, told a reporter that with another man he raced down to the river bank.

He saw the two children floating in the water, and just as he was about to swim to the one farthest from the bank, the strong current swept the body of the boy to the side. With the aid of a stick he got the body out of the water but the child was dead.

The woman was Elveria Doris Reading, aged 42, wife of Frederick James Reading, a baker, of Windsor-road, Evesham.

Mrs. Reading left the following note: "Dear Fred—I have gone to end it all. I am an absolute failure as a mother and wife.—Vera."

Mr. Reading left home at 6 a.m. and found the note on the table when he returned to lunch.

NEW FORTS ON KRONSTADT

FOUR YEARS' WORK COMPLETED

Helsingfors, July 5.

The strengthening of the fortifications of Kronstadt is now reported to have been satisfactorily completed.

During the last four years, 11,000 workmen have been employed day and night in converting the ancient citadel into what Admiral Olof, Commander-in-Chief of the Red Fleet, has referred to as "the Malta of the Baltic."

The Soviet Government has now decided still further to ensure Kronstadt's invulnerability by entirely rebuilding the great Gorky Fortress with a view to its employment as a naval scaplane base. The fortress of Kotlin is to be converted into a great submarine base. Russia's determination to compete with Germany for supremacy in the Baltic is shown by the 1937 naval programme providing for eight new warships and 15 submarines.

GRAVEYARD OF WAR TIME SHIPS

Paris, July 1.

At Bonneuil-sur-Marne, not far from Paris, an American fleet of 25 vessels is gradually sinking in America's inland Scapa Flow.

Strollers along the canal of the Little Marne, which leads from the Marne, come with surprise upon this graveyard of ships, some still afloat, some half-submerged, some showing only their smokestacks, on whose bows are the words, so strange to French eyes, Arkansas, Missouri, Ohio, Kentucky, Worcester, Georgia and finally—not so strange—St. Louis.

NOT MOVED SINCE

They are part of the war stocks—25 river tugs, bought by the French government from the United States in 1918 with the intention of using them for the Paris-Rouen service. They were hand-made boats when they sailed up the Marne, Missouri leading the way, and turned into the canal of the Little Marne in 1916, and the French government had paid 250,000 francs each for them. They were tied up to the bank—temporarily. Coal was left in their bunkers so that they would be ready to move out in a few days and start their new service. They haven't moved since.

After a while the department of inland navigation took the engine out and, presumably, put them to work elsewhere. Later junkmen came around and removed what fittings were left. Inhabitants of the nearby settlements had taken the coal long before that. Thereafter the boats were forgotten. Some of them gradually settled down into the canal on the bottom of the canal. Others are still afloat.

NOAH'S ARK

Once or twice half-hearted efforts were made to sell them. The offering price was moved as low as 50 francs and there were no takers. None, that is, except one American. Maybe he was sentimental or maybe he was tired of paying rent. He turned the boat into a houseboat and renamed it Noah's Ark. He lives in it now. It used to be moored in the Bois du Boulogne, and when he wanted a certificate of domicile, a document often necessary in France, he got it from the forestry guard of the Bois du Boulogne. Now he has moored his boat in the Marne.

The boats are not entirely abandoned. They provide a playground for children of the neighbouring villages, whose favourite sport is playing pirate. Daily they swarm over the American boats and scuffle them with ferocious energy. It doesn't take much imagination. Half of them already are more below the water than above.—United Press.

HAWAII INVITES WORLD TO FEAST ON PIG AND POI

Export of powdered poi may fail to quicken the pulse of international traders but it's got George Paele Mossman so excited he can scarcely pay attention to his Hawaiian language lessons.

Mossman is the man who saw the undulating hula and the plaintive island songs going to waste several years ago and decided it was time somebody saved the culture of Hawaii.

With that culture now well on its way through the world with grass skirt and ukelele accompaniment executed by people from Finland to Fresno, Cal., who have gone to his Hawaiian village school, Mossman has turned to gastronomic research. He's going to teach people to prepare and eat (one is about as hard as the other) Hawaiian food.

This is where the powdered poi comes in.

Grandmother would have a difficult time matching dish for dish the menu of a genuine Hawaiian meal. There are at least 16 courses but a luma (feast) without pig and poi would be about as sumptuous as a New England Thanksgiving without turkey and cranberry sauce.

Nearly any butcher has pork, but Mossman was dismayed about the problem of furnishing poi to European gourmets, for instance, hungry for a Hawaiian feast, until he thought of drying it up and shipping it in cans like powdered milk.

Poi is made by literally pounding to a pulp the taro (native potato) and adding water until a bluish substance somewhat similar to library paste, is formed.

New poi gets stale rapidly. But by evaporating the water Mossman found it would be preserved indefinitely. He insisted the stuff tastes better when water is added again than fresh poi did in the first place.

Mossman figures he can teach the most undomestic hostess how to cook and prepare the feast in 10 easy lessons.

Half of the menu is eaten raw. One of the biggest problems of spreading a home-made luma will be getting the man of the house to gnaw on a piece in the back yard and cart in rocks and wood for the luma, the oven where the pig is cooked.

But, insists Mossman, that's not his job, so he offers no instruction.—United Press.

"Maternity Marathon" Nears End

Toronto, Ontario, July 10.

The Charles Vace Millar "Maternity Marathon," in which several Toronto mothers are competing for a $500,000 prize awaiting the one who bears the most children in the ten-year period ending October 31, was termed "that biologic joke" by Honourable Dr. Herbert A. Bruce, Ontario's Lieutenant-Governor, in an address here.

Speaking to the graduating nurses of the Toronto Hospital for sick children, Dr. Bruce said quality and not quantity was "the only thing worth any consideration where children are concerned."

Referring to the baby race, started in 1926 when Millar, wealthy lawyer and sportsman, and a bachelor, died leaving a will in which he specified the residue of his estate, now valued over $500,000, should go to "the mother who within ten years of my death gives birth to the greatest number of children," Dr. Bruce said:

"That biologic joke—the Millar prize donated by a bachelor was a poor one. You rightly concerned with the physical quality of a child, but Millar had no thought but the quantity of children."

Leaders in the fantastic race appear to be Mrs. Matthew Kenny and Mrs. Arthur H. Timleck, both claiming 11 children since Millar's death.—United Press.

"Black Eagle" Becomes An "Italian"

New York, July 7. Hubert Foudreyer Julian, self-styled "Black Eagle" who a year ago went to Ethiopia in a suburb of Harlem adulation to hold Emperor Haile Selassie in the air, is now an Italian. Julian and the Italian government made it official by announcing recently that the "eagle" had sailed for a tour of Italy on the S.S. Vulcania with an Italian passport. Italian claims that all Ethiopians are now Italian citizens by virtue of annexation.—United Press.

A Physician Explains

LACK of sunshine and a bad winter have been blamed for most of the infective illnesses that have been rife lately.

One trouble which has been so prevalent has been the epidemic of an epidemic in connection with inflammation of the sinuses, or canals, which run through the bones of the face.

These sinuses are fairly easily affected when inflammatory conditions spread from the nose and throat.

The one that passes across the forehead—the frontal sinus—runs just below the eyebrows, and inflammation from the nose may travel up into it.

The result of infection in this area is acute pain and tenderness on pressure over the inflamed canal. Probably much of this pain is due to the fact that the bone cannot expand and the pressure inside at times becomes well-nigh intolerable.

Applications to the inside of the nose give relief, but sometimes when the inflammation becomes chronic or recurring it is necessary to have recourse to surgical treatment and have the sinus opened up.

No home remedy does much good in these cases, and it is wise to seek medical advice.

The antrum is another of these air passages that have been so frequently affected during the past winter and spring. This cavity is in the upper jaw, just behind the cheek bones, and has a communicating channel with the nasal passages.

When infection gets to this area there is pain and tenderness to pressure of the finger on the outer side of the nose and cheek bone.

Inhale This
There is often a considerable discharge through the nose like that which comes after a cold has reached the thick, stuffy stage. This discharge is much worse when the head is bent downwards.

When the antrum is affected it is often necessary to open it up and wash it out, but under certain circumstances clear up by using a simple inhalation like Priors Balsam.

A teaspoonful of this added to a pint of boiling water gives off rather pleasant fumes. The best way to use it is to put a towel over your head, covering the jug or bowl at the same time, and inhale slowly through the nose for three minutes.

It is sufficient to do this three times a day. But, like most other troubles of this nature, you should consult a doctor.

At the back of the throat where you

can't see it because its opening is above the soft palate, there is another passage way leading to the inside of the ear—the Eustachian tube.

Quite often it is the seat of catarrh which may have come either from the throat or from the nose. Catarrh swells up the lining membrane, and when that happens deafness frequently results. Air cannot enter the tube and this stops the drum from vibrating properly.

Disease may spread up into the middle ear, and when the latter is acutely affected there is intense earache. The drum rapidly becomes red and is inflamed, and if surgical treatment is not available in the early stages, the drum perforates and there is a discharge. This is the typical "running ear" which has been so common lately.

A still further complication takes place when the disease spreads to the bone behind the ear—the mastoid, where it is not uncommon to find that an abscess has formed in that area. This often requires surgical treatment to prevent extension of the infection elsewhere.

Running ears and inflammation of the mastoid are essentially conditions for a doctor's care. You are taking unnecessary risks by trying to treat these troubles on your own.

But, when the acute stage has passed and the running still continues, you can do much to hasten healing by paying great attention to hygiene of the outer ear passage.

No one can be surprised at the bitterness in a correspondent's letter. She says: "I should like your opinion on the subject of a friendship between a married man of fifty and a single girl of twenty-five."

Here we have the eternal triangle, and the eternal problem. The wife, objecting to the fact that her husband spends his spare time with the younger woman, and buys expensive presents for her, although he can never afford presents for his own family, is accused of being jealous.

"Is this honourable towards the wife who has devoted over thirty years to his home and comfort?" the writer concludes.

Love Knows No...
If two people, whether married or not, suddenly fall in love, it is difficult for them to be guided by considerations which should weigh with them.

If, however, the younger woman is not really in love, if she feels the slightest elation in taking a man who is married to someone else, then she is beneath contempt.

In the large majority of these cases, the solution rests with the younger

FALSE GLAMOUR

The Eternal

taken him for granted and ceased to make any effort to keep herself attractive.

But the only person, it seems to me, who can really solve the problem is the young woman. If she thinks a moment she must realize how unfair and dishonourable her conduct is, when stripped of its false glamour.

To-day's Recipe

Date Gingerbread

STONE some dates, weigh STONE some dates, weigh four ounces after stoning and chop them. Mix a teaspoonful of dark treacle with a quarter of a pint of warm milk, add four ounces pure all-vegetable fat, blend together well, and add a small teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda. Put a pound of flour into a bowl, add the dates, eight ounces of brown sugar, and half-ounce of ground ginger; mix well together, stir in the treacle mixture, and then two beaten eggs. Beat well, pour into a baking-tin which has been well greased with vegetable fat, and bake in a moderate oven for an hour.

If you have ever been worried about the dust and dirt that blow into your windows from the streets, here is the very thing for you.

This is a special domestic air conditioner, that can be fitted into your fireplace, and not only fulfil the important function of cleansing and cooling the air that you breathe in the summer, but take the place of a fire in the winter.

The design of the apparatus is pleasantly simple, and would fit in with any type of decoration. It can be had cellulosed in a number of colours.

This type of apparatus would undoubtedly make an invaluable addition to the modern home.

For SWIMMING and TENNIS

THE one thing essential to the comfort and full enjoyment of bathing, so far as the modern woman is concerned, is a cap that really refuses to let in water.

How can you enjoy a swim thoroughly if you are sadly conscious that each dive or plunge under the waves is adding to the ruin of your new "set"?

Here, then, is the perfect solution to the problem—a new bathing cap which, by means of an inner flange, forming an air-pocket, keeps the hair absolutely dry. You see the idea sketched on the left above.

Treat yourself to one of these caps this season, and you'll not only look smart in the water but—and it's even more important—you'll look tidy and well groomed when you come out. Available in nine colours, the cap costs 6s. 11d.

Alongside the bathing cap is sketched the latest device for the well-turned-out tennis player. This is an eye-shade and bandeau in one. Made in pretty flowered voile, it is simply put on at a becoming and, if you like, slightly rakish angle, and the scarf ends tied in a knot at the back. Practical and very effective, for the handkerchief placed at the back keeps all one's stray curls in place and the peak gives adequate protection for the eyes.

Another advantage is that, when not in use, the stiffened peak lies completely flat and so can easily be packed—a point to be considered in view of holiday week-ends.—E.G.

SCOTTSBORO NEGROES FACE NEW RETRIAL

Five Year Fight For Vindication
NEW TRIAL STARTS THIS WEEK

Decatur, Ala., July 1.

With one more exciting chapter written into the five-year history of the notorious Scottsboro assault cases, six of the nine Negro defendants will be brought to trial once more here this week.

At the end of the trial of Heywood Patterson, which resulted in a 75-year sentence, the trials of the six were continued due to the illness of a witness considered material by the defence. Only seven of the defendants were arraigned at the special session of the court here in January.

It was at the end of the Patterson trial, while the defendants were being taken to Birmingham, where they are held in jail, that the most recent episode—an attempted break for liberty—occurred.

Ocie Powell, one of the nine defendants, was shot and critically wounded by Sheriff J. Street Sandlin after the Negro had slashed the throat of a deputy sheriff in his attempt to escape.

NEGROES SITTING TOGETHER

The break was made as the motor car which Sandlin drove, and in which the deputy, Edgar Blacklock, rode, reached the crest of Lacey Mountain, between here and Birmingham. Blacklock and Sandlin were in the front seat of the sheriff's car. Powell, Andy Wright, and a third Negro were in the rear seat.

Sandlin said he saw Powell slash at the deputy, and in the rear-view mirror caught a glimpse of Wright preparing to make an assault on him. Sandlin said he turned and shot Powell once in the head. He pulled the car and his men brought it from a state highway patrol car that was following.

Blacklock was not seriously injured, and Powell recovered after weeks in a Birmingham hospital.

TWO NOT ARRAIGNED

Powell and Andy Wright were the two Negroes who were not arraigned at the recent trial, their counsel declaring they were juveniles at the time of the alleged attack, on March 25, 1931, and were not subject to the power of the court.

New York "Noblemen's Club" to Ban Bogus Titles

New York, July 1. NEW YORK society, which harbours in its midst some 3,000 titled men and women, extended an amused welcome to-day to the "Noblemen's Club."

The founders of this novel institution describe it as a "clearing house" for the purpose of banishing from polite circles "bogus" noblemen and noblewomen who prey on the credulity of American hostesses and business men.

At the club's headquarters, amid the hum of many conversations conducted in precise English, tinged with Italian and German accents, Baron Giorgio Suriani di Castelnuovo, after explaining that his own title dated back to the days of Philip II. of Spain (1550-1621), stated: "There are from 700 to 800 qualified potential members of our club—marquesses, barons, counts, even dukes and princes, with, of course, the corresponding number of women title-holders."

"We who are genuine are burning with indignation at the injustice done to our prestige by the activities in New York of fraudulent 'noblemen' and women falsely claiming titles."

The baron declared that the club proposed to launch a campaign for the enactment of a law making it a criminal offence to appropriate titles.

"We shall make things very uncomfortable for any claimants to nobility who cannot produce our card of membership," he added.

He concluded by pointing out the great benefits which the new club would confer on national attachés who, when a member attached his or her name to a brand of condensed milk or whisky, or to a cosmetic, could be sure that the title used was authentic.

Secretary of the club is Baroness Catherine Henkel-Gebhardt, whose family is explained, was originally honoured by Maria Theresa, Empress of Germany from 1717 to 1780.

Roy Wright, Charlie Weems and Willie Robertson.

Lieut. Gov. Thomas E. Knight, Jr., attorney general at the time of the first trial, will head the prosecution. He will be assisted by Melvin Hutson, local solicitor, and members of the attorney general's office.

Judge W. W. Callahan will preside at the trials, which are expected to begin about July 15.—United Press.

U. S. MAY ENLIST G-WOMAN SQUAD IN CRIME DRIVE

By MARY KNIGHT, who was until recently United Press Staff Correspondent in Hongkong

Washington, July 1.

G-Women may become a potent factor in the battle against crime, in the opinion of J. Edgar Hoover, director of the U. S. Bureau of Investigation.

"G-Women are indeed a possibility of the future," he says. "There is much that they can do. They are already playing a conspicuous part in the smooth-running organization of this department. They can be counted upon to handle not only details but important major problems in a crisis sometimes better than men."

Hoover, the bachelor man-of-affairs who amazes Washington society by his ability successfully to avoid matrimony, is launching a war against crime and he may resort to G-Women to help him win the final victory. They won't necessarily be called on to do strong-arm work, although some even will be fitted for that. They will use their heads and be put through as rigorous a training school as ever the men have experienced.

"Crime like charity," says Hoover, "begins at home. No American home is free from it. Last year the minor crime figures topped 12,000 murders and an estimated total of 1,445,581 major crimes. This, incidentally for whatever anybody may think it is worth, is costing the American citizen the modicum of $120 a year. Our annual crime bill is in excess of $15,000,000,000."

"If a typhoid epidemic broke out in a city, endangering the lives of citizens, thousands of volunteers would gallantly rush forth to risk their lives in an effort to protect their homes and loved ones against the ravages of such a plague. Crime is an even greater

Without waiting to become G-Women, the average ABC woman has a big job in preventing a crime that may begin right in her own home. Education of her children is the first fundamental Hoover believes. The proof that crime begins in the home, he says, "comes in the fact that 20 per cent. of our crime is committed by persons not yet old enough to vote, by those not even out of their teens and who are not past high school age and ought to be under the active management and responsibility of the home. Simple, if you like, ABC-Women, the modern woman with her wits about her can work into a first class G-Woman. It is her business to remember that crime begins in America to-day in the cradle, and that the greatest influence toward eradicating the condition is the hand that rocks the cradle."

Hoover believes in parole but only for first offenders.

"Horteforce," he says, "this matter of parole has been the domain of the sentimentalists. It is easy to remember the sad face of the man behind the bars and to shed a tear in the knowledge that he is separated from his freedom and the little woman and children—but why not remember the sprawled form of a murder victim upon the floor?"

"Our records show that 3,576 members of the desperate criminal group have at some time or other felt the mercy of parole or probation or even pardon. It so happens that on numerous occasions criminals have been arrested for new crimes before law-enforcement officials have been notified that the prison gates had been thrown open from a previous sentence which they were supposed to be serving."

"That, in a nutshell," concludes the director of the Bureau of Investigation, "is the story of a national disgrace which has been brought about by this country's debauchery of sentimentalism and clemency."—United Press.

Radiation That Kills All Germs

Chicago, July 7.

A barrage of radiation which apparently destroys germs floating in the air of hospital operating rooms has been described by Dr. Deryl Hart, surgeon in Chicago, Duke Hospital, Durham, N.C.

"Operating room infections, which were fairly common before these tubes were installed," Dr. Hart reported in the June issue of the Modern Hospital, "practically disappeared."

"Improvement in the entire convalescence was good. There was less post-operative pain; the general condition of the patients returned more rapidly to the pre-operative level, and the hospital stay was shortened."

"Contaminated air cannot longer be ignored in the operating room. If it is, primary healing cannot be expected to obtain in all surgical wounds."

Previously, Dr. Hart declared, even under the best conditions the number of organisms in the air has been sufficient to contaminate all exposed wounds, instruments and supplies, despite precautions of washed air, thoroughly cleaned rooms and nose and mouth masks worn by surgeons and attendants.

The apparatus hangs like a chandelier over the operating table, with ray tubes extending in the form of a hollow square about a central light. The radiation is an effective germ-killer at a distance of five feet or more, tests showed.

Since the radiation produces a slight reddening of the skin, like sunburn, persons in the room are equipped with protective covering, including goggles of plain glass, impermeable to the radiation.

"Wounds in animals were exposed to the radiation for periods varying from 30 to 90 minutes," Dr. Hart reported, "without apparent damage. Healing, in fact, seemed to be more rapid than where the radiation was not used."

"While the bacterial radiation did not eliminate more than 80 to 90 per cent of the bacteria in the extreme corners of the room, it did kill practically all the bacteria in the air about the operative wound, supply and instrument tables."—United Press.

RELIEF

New York, July 1. Julius Caesar and Abraham Lincoln both receive workmen's compensation benefits from the New York State Insurance Fund, according to a press release from that organization.

Caesar suffered an injured forefinger when an iron pipe fell on it while at work, and Lincoln was injured in his right eye while working for a contracting company.—United Press.

DRIVEN OUT OF TOWN WITH HIS FRIENDS

Los Angeles, July 1.

WILLIAM HAINES, the film actor, has been the victim of a mysterious attack by a mob of 300 men and women near Mahattan Beach.

After severely beating Haines and a companion, Jimmy Shields, the mob pelted them with tomatoes and drove them and 19 friends from the town.

A society known as the "White Legion" seems to be mixed up in the affair. Several men in the Mahattan Beach area say they are members of the Legion and admit that they had a hand in the disturbance.

"BLACK LEGION"

There is another organisation called the "Black Legion" which may have some connection with the "White Legion."

A message written in human blood was received a few days ago by the Detroit police, who are inquiring into the activities of the "Black Legion." It stated "Lay off the Black Legion—The White Legion."

Mr. Haines says that he does not know the reason for the mob's attack.

"It was a lynch mob all right," he said. "Some wild rumour must have stirred them up."—Reuter.

Blonde Girl Spy Arrested

Paris, July 1.

LYDIA OSWALD, blonde girl spy, who was released from the naval prison in Brest last December after serving a nine-month sentence for espionage, has been arrested in Turkey.

She is in jail, with a Swiss journalist named Nauerberg, in the little town of Mamatia.

It appears that Lydia Oswald and Herr Nauerberg were motoring through Turkey on their way to Iraq and China. Swiss Legation officials who are trying to secure their freedom believe that the two motorists may have entered a military zone by mistake.

LIGHTER POSTMARKS PHILATELISTS PLEASED

Wellington, N.Z., July 1.

The New Zealand Post and Telegraph Department has adopted a new type of roller stamp for cancelling stamps on parcels.

Many packets sent by airmail carry stamps of large face value, and the new cancellation, which leaves a very light ink-mark, will add to their philatelic value. It will also obviate damage, formerly caused by the heavy stamping necessary with the old type.

Skirmishing Reported

Chinese news sources report skirmishing between the vanguards of the Central Government troops and the Kwangtung forces north of Shikwan. They first clashed on Tuesday. It is stated that the Kwangtung troops evacuated Shikwan in order to shorten their line of defence and to concentrate their fighting strength on Kweilin and Yunnan, south of Yintak.

The greater part of Kwangtung's air force is now concentrated at Canton, which is the hub of operations, and where military officers are in almost constant conference. It is understood that the Nanking troops are advancing simultaneously from Hunan, Kiangsi and Fukien, having commenced their forward movement on Tuesday.

They are expected to strike from Fukien in a westerly direction. From Kiangsi they will come from the north-east and from Hunan they will come from the north.

It is also expected that Nanking troops will move on Kwangsi from Hunan and Kweichow and Yunnan.

ADVISORY COUNCIL OF ALL PARTIES ON ITALIAN LINES

Vienna, July 15. The Government is planning the inclusion of moderate Nazis, moderate Socialists and Monarchists in a new "Council of Commanders and Advisors."

It will consist of forty members who will be entrusted with determining Austria's political course, and will be similar to Italy's Fascist Grand Council.

This is the first step towards unification of the conflicting political elements, following the agreement with Germany.

Meanwhile, a sweeping amnesty is expected on July 25, which may possibly include Anton von Rintelen, Christian Socialist leader.—United Press.

BUS FITTER'S THEFT

WIFE'S PLEA FOR LENIENCY

A fitter employed at the Kowloon Motor Bus Company, Luk Tong, aged 37, appeared before Mr. E. Hingworth at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court this morning on a charge of larceny of a quantity of metal component parts, the property of the Company. Mr. W. Wong, representing the Bus Company, was the complainant.

Sub-Inspector H. E. Rogers stated that defendant was stopped by a Chinese district watchman while carrying a parcel in Reclamation Street. The parcel was opened and was found to contain the articles mentioned in the charge. Defendant was taken back to the Kowloon Motor Bus Company, where he said he was employed, and the complainants there said defendant had no permission to remove the property. It was valued at $3. Defendant had been employed by the Bus Company since 1933, and he was an experienced fitter.

Defendant's wife appeared in Court, and pleaded for leniency for her husband. She said she had two children, and her means of support would be taken from her if defendant were sent to prison.

Mr. Wong said he was not pressing the case as defendant bore a

SOLDIER GUILTY OF ASSAULT

CONVICTED ON TWO CHARGES

Rifleman Arthur Robinson, of the Royal Ulster Rifles, was charged before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistrate's Court this morning on two counts of assault, the complainants being Tam Sam, amah, employed at 130 Jaffe Road, second floor, and Chung Hung, a fitter, of 133 Jaffe Road, Acting Sub-Inspector McDonald prosecuted.

It was stated in evidence that defendant struck Tam Sam in the mouth with his fist at 11 p.m. on July 13 at 130 Jaffe Road. Complainant stated that the defendant had been brought home by her mistress, who was a prostitute. She further alleged that he threw a spittoon at her and she fell on it, cutting her arm. She then ran downstairs and blew her whistle. At the bottom of the stairs, she alleged, defendant struck her again.

Chan Ngau-nai, the mistress, said the trouble arose through some grammophone records. Defendant had asked her to lend him some records, and she said she would if he passed her night on the premises. However, he wanted to take them away then and she stopped him.

Evidence was also given by two men, Chung Hung and Wong Yau, who stated they were assaulted by defendant.

Defendant denied that he struck the amah. In the street, he saw two men coming for him and he had to strike out in self-defence.

Defendant was convicted on both counts and was fined $25 on the first and ordered to pay $10 compensation. On the second, he was ordered to pay $3 compensation. His Worship remarked that the second charge was much less serious than the first.

WOMAN'S SUICIDE IN HARBOUR

ANOTHER RESCUED BY SAMPAN

A Chinese woman, aged about 25, committed suicide at 9.30 p.m. yesterday by jumping from the Sham-chui-pu ferry, Man Lai, while in mid-harbour. The body, which is now in the Kowloon Mortuary, has not yet been identified.

Fung Yeung-kin, a widow, attempted suicide by jumping into the harbour near the M.B.K. coalyard, Yau-mai, yesterday, but was pulled from the water by a passing sampan. She was admitted to Kowloon Hospital suffering from immersion.

good character. The Magistrate remarked that although he viewed cases of larceny by servants as serious offences, he would take defendant's good character into consideration, and bound him over in the sum of $50 to be of good behaviour for one year.

EVOLUTION

Considerable prominence has been given in the world press to Russia's proposed new Constitution, containing a revised expression of the Soviet's ideas or ideals of how the Communist State should be governed. The first obvious comment which suggests itself is that the official admission of the necessity for reform implies that the previous order fell far short of the millennium which the Bolsheviks had promised the country. If the proposals put forward are actually brought into operation, many forms of liberty not previously enjoyed will be permitted. It has, of course, always been difficult to discover what is taking place behind the scenes in Russia—but this much at any rate is known—Communism is the only political belief that has been tolerated, whilst liberty of speech and freedom of the Press have been denied the people, and there have been, moreover, systematic campaigns for the extirpation of religion. In the matter of political belief, Communism is to remain the only legal form, but numerous concessions are promised in the way of liberty, including the free practice of religious observances. It is further proposed that asylum shall be granted in Russia to foreign political leaders persecuted by their Governments, although it is not made clear whether such asylum is to be offered to those of other than extreme Leftist views. White Russians, it is safe to assume, would never be welcomed back; nor, can we imagine, would any refugees whose political opinions clash with those of Moscow's leaders. Until the new Constitution is actually working, it would be futile to attempt to assess the real value of the concessions promised. It is one thing to construct a Constitution on paper, but quite another to apply it, even in spirit. Yet there may well be the promise of better days in the proposals now put forward. The mere fact that they are made is something to the good. From time to time during the past three or four years there have been many indications that the Russian conception of Communism is not working as had been hoped; and here and there it has been deemed advisable to compromise with original ideals, even to the extent of adopting capitalistic concepts. The plan fact seems to be that Russia is at the moment passing through a period of political evolution, in which the most glaring defects and shortcomings are being corrected as they become exposed. We may therefore expect to see, by a gradual process, a greater measure of liberty for the masses, the raising of the general standard of life, and an

Are you an Average
Englishman?

THE average Englishman is 5ft. 7½ ins. in height, 11st. 11lb. in weight, made up as follows:

Water	65	%
Salts	5	%
Fat	13.1/3	%
Albumen	15	%
Sugar	1.2/3	%

His hair and eyes are coloured brown. His whiskers grow one-fortieth of an inch every day, his hair one-fiftieth.

He is 4-5th Ancient Briton, 1-10th Anglo-Saxon, 1-20th Roman, 1-20th French.

Research on skeletons shows that the modern Englishman is fundamentally the same type as the Ancient Briton of the Iron Age (1000 B.C.).

He is 36ins. round the chest, 32ins. round the waist, 38ins. round the seat of his trousers. His arm from shoulder to wrist measures 24ins. The length of his trousers inside the leg is 30½ ins., and his elbow height is 43ins.

He takes size 8 in shoes, which means that his feet are 11-11½ ins. long. His hat size is 6¾ to 7, meaning that his head measures 21¾-22ins.

He works in commerce or finance (like 15.6 per cent. of Englishmen). Blackcoats are taller and heavier than manual workers, the clerks of London being tallest at 5ft. 8½ ins. Birmingham clerks are second, Liverpool ones are about average, Leeds, Sheffield, and Glasgow ones below it.

He reaches maximum height at twenty to twenty-one years. His grip increases up to twenty years, and stays about uniform until a slow decline sets in at about forty. His pull increases to a maximum at 25½-27½, and declines slowly from thirty.

Considered as a machine, he develops approximately one-seventh horse-power. This is very small compared with other motors, but the efficiency is good. A steam engine would require twice as much fuel to develop the same energy (300,000 kilocalories a day) as the human machine.

NOTES OF THE DAY

The trade revival is having a great effect on yachting in Britain. According to reliable reports yacht builders have been busier during the past winter than at any time since the Great War. The sport is generally regarded as a luxury which only men with very satisfactory bank balances can indulge in, but apparently the number of such fortunate individuals has increased considerably and the present racing season promises to be one of the most brilliant ever experienced. At the Royal Harwich Yacht Club Regatta, which was held from the sixth to the ninth of June, there were some wonderful craft, which were handled magnificently, the large yachts of the "J" class being greatly admired.

Perhaps the most important event of the yachting season this year was the launching of the new "J" class yacht, "Endeavour II", which was designed by Mr. C. E. Nicholson and built at Gos-

all-round greater tolerance shown by the nation's leaders. These developments may carry with them an implied condemnation of the practices of the past, but if the realities are faced and a sincere effort made to institute reasonable reforms, those at the head of affairs will be displaying a measure of political wisdom which may result in the general uplift of the nation and an enhancement of its reputation in other parts of the world.

are of one, two, or three persons. He lives in a town of more than 50,000 inhabitants (like nearly half the population).

Britain's national expenditure in 1934 was £4,094,000,000. There are 11,800,000 families in the Homeland, so that the average expenditure per family is £330.

One pound in every ten of his earnings goes in direct taxation. Every week he spends £1 17s. on food, 19s. 11d. on maintenance of his home, 13s. 10d. on saving, including for new houses and furniture, 10s. on clothes, 9s. on travel, 7s. 2d. on liquor, 4s. 7d. on miscellaneous expenses, 4s. on smoking, 2s. 6d. on entertainment, 2s. on newspapers and books, 3s. 3d. on sickness, accidents, and insurance.

He has three suits, two for work, one sports or week-end suit. One is probably grey. Forty-five per cent. of the suits sold last year were grey. The second is more likely to be blue than brown. Thirty per cent. of the suits made in 1935 were blue, 20 per cent. brown.

His overcoat is probably blue or black. Forty-five per cent. of last year's sales were these colours, 35 per cent. grey.

THERE is no foretelling men's taste in colours. They change without reason. But so far there does not seem to have been much alteration this year.

He buys two pairs of shoes a year, paying 10s. a pair. The soles last him two months.

His hat is a nigger brown trilby or a bowler. These types top hat sales with forty per cent. each.

Just now he is losing weight. The average man is 15lb. lighter in summer than in winter. He visits his hairdresser ten times in summer for only nine in winter. It makes him feel cool and fresh. He suffers from rheumatism, as do four out of five of his countrymen.

Since the slump his standard of living has gone up. How has he spent the extra money?

Twenty-six point nine per cent. of the population have increased their expenditure on home necessities, 21.13 per cent. on saving, 17.24 per cent. on charity, 13.89 per cent. on hobbies, 11.66 per cent. on children, 9.26 per cent. on luxuries.

Take the typical case of a man who has spent money on home things, whose income has increased by £50. He spent £9 11s. on better clothes for himself, £9 5s. on better clothes for his wife, £8 14s. on furnishing, £8 2s. on more domestic help, £9 4s. on improving his house, £5 4s. on better food.

If he goes shopping he walks twenty feet into a shop and then wants to turn to the right. He looks first at red colours, then green, then orange, last at purple. His attention shifts about every two seconds.

THE films he liked best last year were "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," "Top Hat," "Bright Eyes," "The Scarlet Pimpernel," "Sanders of the River," "The 39 Steps." Four fundamental desires control his life:

1. The desire to be more masculine.

2. The desire to be more adequate.
3. The desire for romance.
4. The desire for life.

HOW do his desires display themselves?

1. He desires to be more masculine.

He tries to cultivate his body by physical exercise and yearns to be strong and virile.

His coat is padded to make his shoulders look broad.

He drives hard bargains, not so much to save money as to prove himself better than his opponent. When he takes his wife to a restaurant he is much more fastidious than when alone.

2. He desires to be more adequate.

He buys a larger car, a more expensive radio than he can afford. He buys expensive things not only to impress his friends, but to impress the salesman.

3. He desires romance.

He buys a car because it looks glamorous, borrows a book because of its romantic title, goes to the cinema to see an alluringly named film.

4. His desire for life becomes stronger every year.

After thirty-five he begins to take little aches and pains more seriously. He drives less recklessly, saying that he is saving petrol and wear and tear.

He gets interested in health exercises and foods, in safety devices on things he buys. He likes reading "How I did it" interviews with centenarians.

HE would be willing to commit a murder, if he knew that he could not be found out, for £20,000, to have his hair dyed green for £8,000, would sell his chances of life after death for £3,000, would agree to death in fifteen years for £10,000, wants at least £100 to parachute from an airplane 3,000 feet up.

His conversation centres chiefly round business and family, but also includes sport and high spot politics. As he goes to bed he cleans his teeth, which are not so good as they would be if he used them enough on hard, gritty foods. Well, how near the average are you?

THE KING LEADS FASHION

By "Guardian"

It was a sunny May day, and King Edward, looking from his window, thought it just the day for the wearing of a straw hat. He put the thought into action and went to a brilliant society function wearing the first straw hat seen in London this summer.

The effect was immediate. Straw hats, say the London leaders of fashion, are going to come back into favour they have not known since the War days. Two thousand extra hands have already been engaged to cope with the orders that are expected to flood into the hat-making towns of Britain.

The King has led fashion before, when Prince of Wales. There was, for instance, a style of tying a silk scarf which a year or two ago was all the rage among smart young men about Town. The scarf the Prince wore during a cold spell was a polka-dot blue silk square, which he tied by folding in half and passing the two ends through the loop—drawing it closely round the neck.

FAIR ISLE ART

There was the fashion of the Fair Isle golf sweater, which created a sensation when the first wore it at St. Andrews fourteen years ago. The sweater the King wore on that occasion puzzled most of the people who either saw it or read a description of it afterwards. Generally it was regarded as a souvenir of the visit to Japan he had paid not long before. The second guess was that it was a gift from some Roumanian peasant. Actually, it was knitted in the Fair Isle from traditional patterns, which have been held to date back to the days of the Armada.

At any rate the Prince, as he then was, wore this striking sweater for an hour on the links. That brief hour brought a boom in Fair Isle sweaters, with much profit to the makers.

It was the King who, while Prince of Wales, brought back the bowler hat to a favour which had declined sadly after the war, when many men chose to wear soft felt hats.

In the hunting field he turned out one day at Melton Mowbray wearing the skin-fitting hunting shirt of bright yellow which gentlemen farmers of the shires wear a century and a half ago. That revived another old fashion and did a spot of good to a trade which needed a flip at that moment.

Once at Le Touquet he appeared on the links in black, and white check trousers, a sleeveless jumper of a delicate shade of salmon pink, and a shirt and collar of bright blue. That created a sensation akin to the one created at St. Andrews. The next day aeroplane loads of similar apparel were being rushed to Le Touquet, and were being snapped up eagerly by those who wanted to follow the Prince's rather daring fashion lead.

GLENGARRY REVIVAL

Wherever he has gone abroad the King has led the fashion of the moment. Thus when he went to the Cape some years ago and got up country there came down to Durban and other centres urgent orders for formal clothes from farmers who had given up all ideas of such things for years.

It was the same when he went to South America, where an immediate result of his visit was a great rush of orders for evening dress on pure English lines. His wearing of a Glengarry bonnet in Canada some years ago led to a widespread revival of this form of headgear.

Some of the fashions the King when Prince of Wales showed a mind for were distinctly startling, innovations which made the experts of Savile Row sit up and take notice.

There was one occasion, for instance, when he went to some boys' club boxing championships wearing a double-breasted dinner jacket, a soft shirt and soft cuffs, and a soft collar, plus a pullover in grey check. That was a fashion that was not generally adopted afterwards, nor, of course, was it ever intended to be.

Some fashions that the King leads undoubtedly are seriously meant. Already the most versatilely dressed man in the world, he once declared that if it would help the British Empire one tiny bit he would only be too happy to wear a different suit of clothing for every single individual he had to meet.

He is like that—British trade and its welfare is one of the very real things of life to him, and he is always thinking how this or that trade can be taken out of the doldrums into which it has either fallen or that may be threatening it.

"Trade means employment," says the King in effect. "Fashions mean employment. Whatever I can do to help trade and bring more work to the people of Britain I intend to do."

SIDE GLANCES By George Clark

"All right, I'll tell the tai-pan that we can't move to Shanghai because you don't want Doris Jean to leave her top-dancing class."

PIECING TOGETHER THE LONG STORY OF FAR EASTERN HISTORY

HONGKONG TO U.K. IN SIX DAYS

With £60,000 Contract

RECENTLY we published a picture of Mr. J. H. Pennington leaving Hongkong by the Imperial Airways liner Dorado after a spectacular dash here to secure an engineering contract from the China Light and Power Company.

This is the showing he received in a London daily which commented on his flight.

"Mr. J. H. Pennington is the Modern Commercial Traveller. He has just flown back to London from China with engineering contracts worth £60,000 in his pocket.

"The journey of 9,000 miles took him 6 days 9 hours. He believes he is the first fare-paying passenger to do the trip.

"Talking about his 'hustle,' Mr. Pennington said: "There was a possible contract going in Hongkong. I had to be there quickly to get it. There were other British firms after it, besides foreigners.

FOUR WEEKS SAVED

"I flew out to Singapore by Imperial Airways, and finished the trip to Hongkong by boat.

"Coming home, I flew in the first Imperial service plane from Hongkong to Penang. There I caught the Dutch K.L.M. service, which brought me back to Croydon in five days. The British line takes eight and a half days.

"My fare by air came to about £50 more than by boat. But it saved me four weeks.

"I made another business air trip in China, 400 miles between Hankow and Shanghai. That was in an American plane, which did the journey in three hours five minutes through a snowstorm.

"I flew out to show customers in China that if they buy British machinery they can have a London man with them within a week if they have any trouble."

AUSTRALIA MAY MAKE WARPLANES

TO SUPPLY BRITAIN'S NEEDS IN HONGKONG AND SINGAPORE

THE possibility of Australia becoming a centre of manufacture for British aircraft and engines in the Pacific and the Far East is being discussed both in Australia and Great Britain following recent investigations by Wing-Commander Wackett, the Australian expert, who has been consulting with leading aircraft manufacturers in England and on the Continent.

Two firms have already been approached in Australia in connection with a scheme for manufacturing British aero-engines under licence. Because of the limited demand, however, during the initial stages in the establishment of the industry, the proposed Australian aircraft branches could be kept employed only if orders were obtained from the Imperial Government as well as from the Commonwealth.

WAR-TIME VALUE

The Australian authorities are seeking this forcibly. They emphasise that the production of British aircraft in Australia would be most valuable to the Far East in war-time.

The selection of companies to undertake the work, however, includes one that is closely associated with an engineering firm in the United States, and it is unlikely that the Imperial Government would be willing to place its secrets in the hands of a firm connected with the United States.

Wing-Commander Wackett has left Europe for America where he will continue his investigations.

Dr. Callenfels Explains His Archaeological Work

MIGRATION OF TRIBES BY WAVES FROM CHINA SOUTHWARDS

HONGKONG and Malaya are only just about to be explored by the archaeologist and ethnographical research worker, declared Professor van Stein Callenfels, the eminent Dutch archaeologist who has conducted research in south-eastern Asia for the past 30 years, in a recent interview.

Professor Callenfels granted the interview just prior to his departure recently for Oslo, to attend the second international congress of pre-historians as delegate from Netherlands India. Mr. M. W. F. Tweedie, curator of the Raffles Museum, who has already gone on leave, will represent the Straits Settlements at the congress which opens on August 3.

QUESTIONED about archaeological work in Malaya, Prof. Callenfels said:

All the finds we make and the whole of our research concern one special problem—the Melanesoid race which must have come from somewhere in the north, passed through the peninsula, through the archipelago, to New Guinea, Australia and over the Pacific.

"They came in several waves, not just one tribe hurrying from China, but in wave after wave during thousands of years gone by, and in the difference in time their basic civilisation developed in several ways, so that the details of how their implements were made, and of what, would furnish us with valuable information as to what particular wave our finds belong to.

GREAT SCOPE

"It was with this in view that we made excavations in Province Wellesley in 1934, Pahang last year, and Sungai Siput just recently.

"Malaya offers a great scope for archaeology, as nobody has done serious work before this. The whole country is full of interesting material; anyone working with a generous allowance of hundreds of thousands of dollars would be occupied for another 50 years perhaps.

"We are only just at the start, and it is owing to Raffles Museum and the Carnegie Trust of New York that we are able to do the work now.

"My finds confirm my hypothesis about the migration of the Melanesoid race and have thrown more light on the question. We are beginning now to be able to fill in gaps and understand better the details."

Prof. Callenfels found another link in Pahang last month, when he was excavating a rock shelter at Gua Ba'ak, about ten miles from the Sungai Siput railway station.

TRIAL TRENCHES

Mr. H. D. Noone, field ethnographer of the Perak State Museum, dug trial trenches in caves and rock shelters and as a result of investigations it was decided to excavate Gua Ba'ak, revealing that Pahang was peopled before the Christian era. The excavations yielded one complete skeleton and two human skulls which Prof. Callenfels believed to be the remains of people of a sub-tribe of Melanesoid culture who lived there about 2500 B.C.

Stone and bone weapons and implements were also found in the rock shelter which was evidently inhabited by people who buried their dead in the same place.

TO GO DEEPER

"We are just yet working on the top layers," said Prof. Callenfels.

What Punishment By The "Birch" Is Really Like

THE other day a bag-snatcher was sentenced to receive twelve strokes of the birch.

What is punishment with the "birch" really like?

Dried birch twigs, hard and brittle, about thirty-six inches in length, tied at one end, constitute the birch.

Some men are employed to do nothing but make these birches.

The birch is inflicted for similar offences to those for which the "cat" is administered, but only when they are of less serious character.

For example, the ringleader of a plotted mutiny in prison would receive the "cat" while those who blindly followed his dictates would receive the birch.

Like the "cat," a prisoner always receives a medical examination pronouncing him fit or otherwise to be birched.

"Although I am leaving for Europe Mr. Noone will be still at it for a considerable time; when I left, we were five feet from the surface, and there are probably another seven feet to be excavated. The deeper you go the older, of course, is the material you see."

"There are only two sites in the whole of the peninsula where we have found implements made of bone, one in Pahang many years ago, and then in Perlis last April, when we discovered them in some 15 or 20 caves.

"It was rather puzzling that the same civilisation in Java and in Indo-China should have implements of bone but not here. Now we are starting to get them out."

It is likely that a large-scale expedition will be sent to Ulu Kelantan next year to investigate traces of Melanesoid migrations by a series of excavations from north to south through the peninsula on the western and eastern sides of the mountain range. Work is being done on the eastern side in Pahang now, but the north and west have so far been neglected.

BURMA A LINK

At the Oslo congress Prof. Callenfels will inform the council and other delegates of what has been done in Malaya, Indo-China and Netherlands India in the way of excavations regarding these Melanesoid migrations.

"I will carefully point out that we can never find a solution to the question if no work of this kind is done in Burma," he said. "According to what we now know of Melanesoid civilisation there was probably some Indian influence and I intend to draw the attention of the Burmese Government to the need for co-operation."

"Secondly, I intend to discuss the question of a scurvy disease which is very rare in this part of the world—infection of the mucous covering of the nose and pharynx, which probably came to this country from India round about the beginning of the Christian Era with a wave of megalithic civilisation."

MEDICAL HELP WANTED

"I pointed this out to the medical authorities in Netherlands India and they are now working on it on the Palembang highlands, in central Java. Bali and the Celebes where there are traces of this civilisation, and they have found this maldy already, so it seems that my theory in connecting the disease with this civilisation is possibly right."

Night Landing Thrills

R.A.F. FIGHTERS AT PRACTICE

ON many clear, dark evenings Hongkong residents see the flashing of searchlights.

The droning of engines is heard, and high above are seen the red and green navigation lights of an aeroplane.

At Kai Tak aerodrome is not lit up except for the red obstruction lights on the wireless mast, faint gleams in the windows of aerodrome buildings, and one tiny red light at the aerodrome boundary under the incoming machine.

But the spectator may be in a position to see on the ground half a dozen faint, hazy, yellow glowing patches, at wide intervals. The pilot descending with apparent gentleness, slowed down to about 100 miles per hour, has his eyes fixed on the ground lights indicated by this glow.

THE LUMINOUS "T"

The flares are arranged in a fixed order and at regulation distances. Subconsciously, almost, the eye and brain of the pilot judge diminishing altitude and distance, and hand on throttle and control stick, he is ready at the right instant to flatten out for the landing.

There are six ground lights altogether, and these are arranged as a "T," so that the long arm, which is 250 yards in length, is pointing into the wind. The aerodrome, therefore, has to be brought down so that it lands on the long arm of the "T" and runs towards the cross-piece.

The aeroplanes engaged are single-seater fighters, which are gaining invaluable practice of night take-offs and landings. It is also practice for Hongkong's searchlight crews.

It needs good sight, nice judgment, and all the experience that can be worked in with the other busy routine of their duty.

The task of the Day and Night Fighter is to go up and tackle enemy raiders in the air. The machines are designed not only for great speed and fast climb, but for comparatively slow landing. In point of fact, they take the ground at something between 45 and 60 miles per hour, according to conditions.

A FASCINATING SPECTACLE

Seen from the road the aeroplane seems to creep over the aerodrome boundary, or rather where the spectator guesses the boundary exists. Even to the spectator it is a moment of anxiety, and in a second or so he may hear a faint thud as wheels touch ground, followed by a slight metallic rattling as the aeroplane settles on the other side of the aerodrome. The pilot switching on some of his power, and taxiing perhaps to take-off for more practice.

Within half an hour you may see a dozen such landings, a strangely fascinating spectacle. The aeroplanes, and all this practice, equipped with any means for illuminating the ground below or in front.

Recreio Overcome Big Obstacle In Tennis Title Quest

Formation Of Ladies' Double Tennis League Is Suggested

Ex-Boxer's 30 Days' Fast To Keep Fit

New York, June 22. Harry Wills, a former U.S. boxing champion, has just ended his annual fast. Every year Wills goes without food for 30 days because he thinks it is the best way to keep him fit. He has been doing it for 25 years—even when he was in training for a big fight. In spring Wills has a hearty meal and then for the next month lives on nothing but hot water. Now at 44, he is fit enough to give many of the present-day heavyweights a hard fight.

C.R.C. VERSUS RECREIO

(By "Veritas")

Chinese Recreation Club and Club de Recreio have announced their teams for to-morrow's important "B" Division tennis match at Causeway Bay.

Recreio will make no changes from the side which yesterday defeated Grainger, the couples being—

L. A. Carvalho and A. M. Oliveira, J. J. Remedios and L. P. Ribeiro, and W. A. Reed and A. E. Xavier.

Chinese Recreation Club will turn out the following pairs.

Lee Yu-wing and Lau Man-chung, Lu Tak-lam and Luk Chun-chung, and Tsui Ping-fan and Ng Kam-chuen.

This team has already performed for the C.R.C. this year, although Loung Ping-chiu is a notable absentee.

Both teams are particularly well balanced which will contribute towards a very fine match.

The encounter will take place at Causeway Bay and is certain to attract a number of spectators in view of its importance.

The match will be specially reported by "Veritas" for Saturday's edition of the Telegraph.

EASILY DEFEAT C. C. C.

Shock For K. C. C.

Club de Recreio yesterday overcame the first big obstacle in their quest for the "B" Division tennis league championship, but the real test comes to-morrow when they play Chinese Recreation Club (1). Victory for either team is a guarantee for the title.

Only J. W. Leonard and Y. Hachima offered any resistance to the well-balanced Portuguese team yesterday. The well known couple won two sets, but the rest of the team could make no impression and conceded all their sets to leave Recreio comfortable winners.

Willie Reed, the Interport hockey player, and J. Xavier gave an astonishingly fine display for the visitors, actually defeating Leonard and Hachima six-sets in addition to securing the other two sets without being extended.

GRIM STRUGGLE

There was a grim struggle for points at the Kowloon Cricket Club where H.K.C.C. were the visitors. The first three sets were drawn and altogether four of the nine sets were halved. At the close of the second round the teams were three-all and the decision was not reached until the last set in which Gray and Crawford had an unexpectedly easy win over V. R. Gordon and A. C. I. Bowler.

K.C.C. were expected to win fairly comfortably, but the Cricket Club put up a spirited resistance and all but turned the scales in their favour.

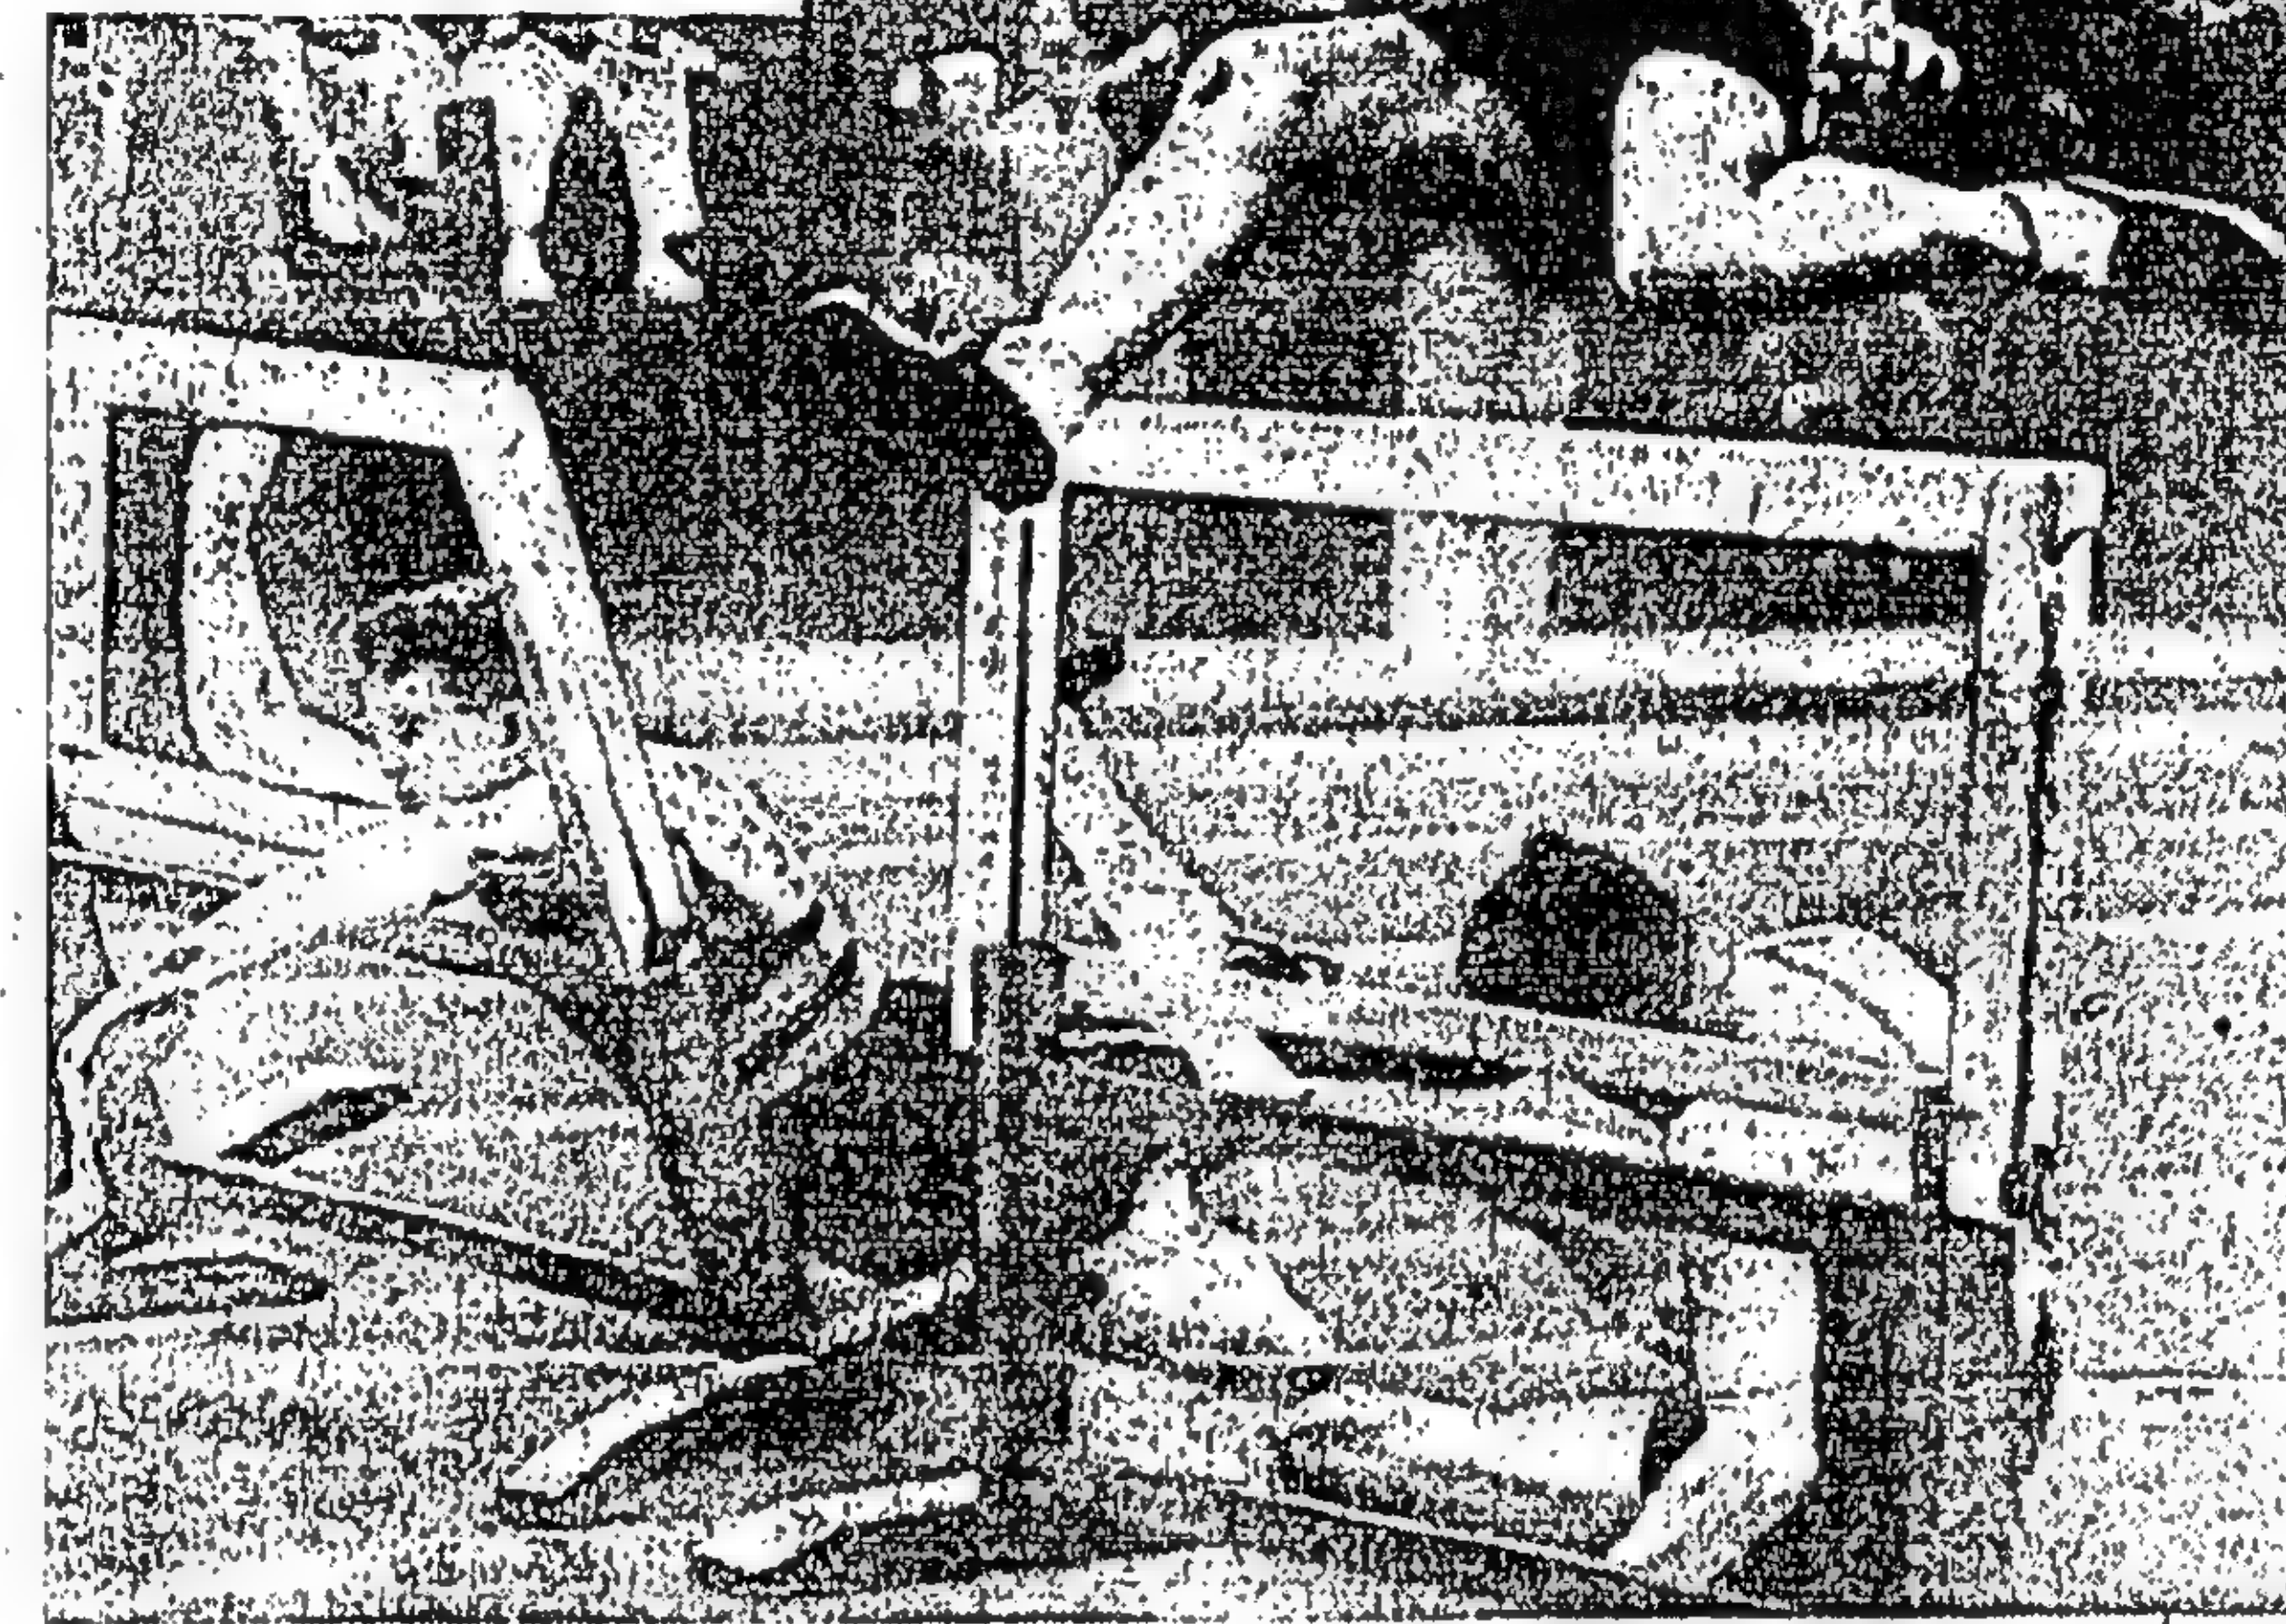

In the opening set, J. Rogers and D. H. Evans were trailing 1-5 against Gray and Crawford, then won five games in a row and finally halved the set.

The same K.C.C. couple faced a 1-1 deficit in their second set against T. C. Monaghan and G. E. R. Divett, and only by careful play did they manage to recover, win the next five games in a row and the set.

Teddy Ramsey, still feeling the effects of his recent illness, took a couple of sets in which to settle down, but played up well in the third and vital stanza. Burnett was consistently good.

Despite their excellent performance of the previous week, Civil Service found it expedient to change the composition of their pairs against Indian Recreation Club yesterday. The upset was a nine sets to love victory. I.R.C. were outplayed from the start.

Fastest Mile Ever Run In England

WOODERSON DOES 4:10.8 ON GRASS

At the Southern Athletic Championship last month, S. C. Wooderson ran the fastest mile ever recorded in England. His time, 4min. 10.8sec, beat Lovelock's British record by 1.2sec.

Wooderson was running on grass and made his own pace over the third and fourth laps—a truly remarkable performance. He is a runner who should be able to go with the best in the 1,500 metres at the Olympic Games.

Times returned in other events at meetings last month show that England's Olympic "probables" are now approaching the top of their form and promise a fair share of the track honours at Berlin for Great Britain.

Two of England's best quarter-milers, G. L. Rampling and W. Roberts, running at different meetings, both set up district records, and there was only one-fifth of a second between their times. Rampling's being 48.4sec, and Roberts' 48.6sec.

A. G. K. Brown, who earlier in the month won three events for Cambridge University against the A.A.A., equalled the British 100 yards record, won the Middlesex Counties (junior and half-mile) titles at Luton, his times being 22.2sec, and 1min. 55.6sec, respectively. Brown also holds the Midland quarter-mile title, which was completed for earlier in the season.

Three big meetings, Southern, Midlands, and Northern Counties championships each resulted in a number of new district records being established, besides those already mentioned. Another notable performance was accomplished by D. O. Finlay, the A.A.A. champion, whose record of 14.8sec. for the 120 yards hurdles equalled Lord Burghley's English native record and the Southern Counties record.

Paris, July 13. The Franco-American lawn tennis match, played here over the week-end, yesterday ended with a 3-2 victory in favour of the United States. During the Sunday matches, Budge defeated Dautremont (France), 6-1, 6-0, "Bilby" Grant (U.S.A.) won from Andre Merlon 6-4, 2-0, 6-4; Marcel Bernard (France) beat Harold Surfact 6-0, 6-2, while in the doubles, Budge and Grant beat the French couple Petra and Marcel Bernard 7-5, 6-1, 6-2.

KEEN SUPPORT LIKELY Next Year?

(By "Veritas")

It is more than possible that next season the Hongkong Lawn Tennis Association will be asked to consider organising a ladies doubles tennis league.

Taking part in a discussion on the proposition last week I was, frankly, surprised to discover the amount of interest and enthusiasm there exists for the idea. Members of two clubs at least, I know, are wholeheartedly in favour of it, and I imagine it is more than likely that opinions will be canvassed during the close season to ascertain exactly what support will be forthcoming for such a league.

On the face of it, at least four clubs should be in a position to compete. Recreio and K.C.C. can certainly field teams, while U.S.R.C. and Ladies Recreation Club should be able to put in two teams each. One could also expect support from Chinese Recreation Club and possibly the Kowloon Bowling Green Club.

In the course of the unheated debate last week it was revealed that the mixed doubles league is not so popular as one might have led to think, and that certainly quite a few players would not mind if a ladies' doubles league superseded the mixed doubles.

But this is not advocated. It is believed possible to run both leagues in addition to the men's division. Either Thursday or Friday could be set aside for the ladies' tennis, neither of these days clashing with the existing mixed doubles or "A" and "B" Division programmes.

DEPENDS ON SUPPORT. Everything, of course, depends on the amount of support forthcoming for such a project. If the Association can be guaranteed an entry of not less than four or five teams, a ladies' league will be worth while and the L.A.A. would do well to organise it.

From what I have heard there is little reason to doubt that such a league would prove popular, and I certainly think it will do more to encourage the game and raise its standard among local lady players than the mixed doubles league.

The unfortunate feature about mixed doubles league tennis is that teams are so keen on winning that too often the men "poach", and unless a lady player is first rate, she will be crowded out of a game except for an occasional return of service.

This is prevalent with all the teams and is not a feature confined to one or two. It therefore becomes debatable whether the mixed doubles league is really fulfilling the purpose for which it was established.

As yet mixed doubles is the only opportunity our lady players have of participating in the league, and even then a certain number are deprived of the experience because only three

Recreio And S. China

Chief importance concerning today's "C" Division tennis is the clash between Club de Recreio and South China A.A. Both teams are as yet undefeated and the outcome of this match will go a long way towards deciding the championship. The only other rivals to these teams is the K.I.T.C. who to-day meet C.R.C.

Recreio are at home and because they host a team of three equally-balanced pairs they can be expected to win probably by a larger margin than one would anticipate from the records of the two teams.

If Recreio survive this test they will meet their final opponent next Tuesday when they play K.I.T.C. in a rearranged match.

K.I.T.C., Civil Service, Kowloon Tong, Army Tennis Club and Recreio are expected to win this afternoon, the full programme being:

C.R.C. v. A.I.T.C.
C.S.C.C. v. University
K.C.C. (2) v. Kowloon Tong
A.T.C. v. I.R.C.
Recreio v. S.C.A.A.

Two further matches in the Colony lawn bowls championship will be decided this afternoon. A. W. Grimmit meets C. H. Baston on the Kowloon Cricket Club green, while A. M. Omar plays A. E. Carey on the Talkoo Recreation Club green.

Other sports engagements to-day include league tennis, described in another column, and swimming gala staged by South China Athletic Association at 7.30 this evening.

Players are needed for a team. A league for ladies' doubles would ensure more players receiving a regular game, and would it is felt by several enthusiasts, provide them with more fun and pleasure than that derived from the mixed doubles league. The idea is certainly worth bearing in mind and is worthy of the close attention of clubs and the Association.

Modern science has made it easier for you to— look after your TEETH

OUR teeth in Hongkong to-day are better than they have been for several generations. There is less dental caries in the front of the mouth, and, owing to the new scientific attitude to dentistry, more people are keeping their teeth into middle-age.

Overcrowding of teeth still exists to a large extent. This is due very largely to the fact that the average British head and jaw is long and narrow, and at the same time we have the racial characteristic of large teeth. One hundred years ago you will find in dental records exactly the same complaint.

It would appear then that this is a fact that we must all recognise and make allowances for in families where this national characteristic is strong.

To combat this tendency a new approach to children's teeth has arisen. That is to the spacing of the baby teeth. More and more children from the age of eight to twelve are wearing plates to stretch and space the upper and lower jaws.

In some instances the milk teeth are removed to allow the permanent teeth to come through in the correct position. With this treatment it is hoped to avoid the necessity of removing any of the permanent teeth later on to prevent overcrowding. All milk teeth are now treated as serious necessities and are filled in similar way to the permanent teeth.

At the moment in England there are eleven million people able to avail themselves of dental treatment through National Health Insurance schemes. In primary and secondary schools there are dental services and in welfare and ante-natal clinics advice is given on the best diet for saving teeth during pregnancy. Much more of this sort of work should be done in Hongkong.

shortage of beds available to the public for serious dental operations. Few people realise that the removal of some teeth means a serious surgical operation and necessitates several days in bed. These cases are, of course, the abnormal ones where there are cysts on the root of the teeth or the roots are badly curved round the jaw bones.

The actual extraction of teeth has altered very little, other local injections of novocain or total anaesthesia by nitrous oxide being given. No experiments on the lines of the dentine application recently proclaimed in America have yet been tried in this Colony.

The filling of teeth has altered in that no attempt is made to kill the nerves of the tooth. A live tooth will retain its colour and its filling.

A tooth that was first killed, as in former practice, was found either to turn black after filling or else to loosen and come away from the jaw after a year or so.

False dentures are now as light and delicate as our craftsmen can make them. They aim at a complete conformity with the patient's own teeth, both as regards shades of enamel and size and shape of teeth.

In the case of front dentures it is now the practice to take impressions of the real teeth before they are removed, and have facsimiles made up in porcelain. These are then fitted straight into the patient's jaw immediately his own teeth have been removed.

In this way the gums close in round the new teeth and you do not get an unsightly gap in between each artificial tooth and the gum. The psychological effect on the patient is also excellent, as many people dread several weeks without front teeth.

The replanting of a patient's own teeth after an accident is quite possible. Where whole teeth have been knocked out and the jaw is not broken, it is possible to replant the teeth immediately and they will grow back firmly into position. This is of course a god-send after motor accidents or in the case of knocks and blows to athletes.

As an indication of the attention we should normally pay to our teeth is the fact that it has been found that each schoolchild to-day requires dental treatment to an average of one tooth per year.

In our general health we do not expect to be for one year without either cold, cough, or headache—neither can we expect to be without some very slight attention to our teeth during that period. They are dead pieces of bone in our mouths but are alive and need the same watching as our hair or our skin.

REFORMING BANK OF FRANCE

SHARES SLUMP ON BOURSE SUSPENSION OF TRADE

Paris, July 15.
Reform of the Bank of France is at hand, and the shares of the bank were so seriously affected on the Bourse that trading had to be suspended where there was no contact with the Reform Bill has been dealt with finally.

The principal reforms in the proposed new Government Bill include provision for complete independence of the Bank's administration, the independent financial position of the Governor, the enlargement of the governing council to include qualified representatives of national economy chosen for their expert knowledge and without political considerations, and the extension of the right of voting to all shareholders, which has hitherto been the privilege of two hundred of the largest.

The outcome of the reforms will be to make the Bank's methods in some ways similar to the Central Banks of the Anglo-Saxon countries.

The trading in the Bank shares on the Bourse was suspended after their fall to 270 francs in the afternoon. Trading will be resumed after the Reform Bill is voted on in the Chamber of Deputies to-morrow.

CALLS NOTE A FORGERY

DEFENDANT DENIES BORROWING $2,870

A claim for $2,870, being money lent and interest thereon, was brought by Mrs. Fung Kam, alias Fook Kee, against Chan Hing-kau, before the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor in the Supreme Court this morning.

Mr. H. C. Macnamara, instructed by Mr. M. C. McCullum, appeared for the plaintiff, and the defendant was represented by Mr. Lee D'Almada, Jr., instructed by Mr. Peter H. Sin.

Mr. Macnamara said the claim was for money lent and interest thereon, under a borrowing note made in 1933. He would call evidence to rebut the allegations of the defendant that he did not know the plaintiff and that the action was instigated by one Chan Hing-kau against whom he was making bankruptcy investigations.

Giving evidence, the plaintiff said she had known the defendant for six or seven years. On October 22, 1933, when she was residing at 101 Queen's Road East, first floor, the defendant, together with her brother-in-law, came and asked her if she would lend him $2,000 to carry out a construction contract which he had just obtained. Three days later, she lent him the money, in respect of which the defendant gave her a promissory note and agreed to pay her one and a half per cent. interest every month. Since then, she had received no interest or the return of the loan, despite repeated requests.

Cross-examined by Mr. D'Almada, witness said the person named Fook Kee mentioned in the borrowing note was her alias and not her husband's. When she was first approached for the loan, she went to Yau-mat to look at defendant's shop in order to ascertain whether it did exist or not. She did not know the defendant's family.

AN UPRIGHT MAN
Counsel: Knowing so little about the defendant and his business did it not occur to you to get a guarantor?—No, I trusted him because my brother-in-law, since dead, told me that he was an upright man.

In reply to further questions, witness denied that the first time she saw the defendant was in the Chief Justice's chambers a short while ago. She maintained that the note was signed by the defendant.

Mrs. Yue Sau-chen testified that while she was living with the plaintiff, she had often seen the defendant in the house.

The defendant, in the witness-box, said that he was formerly a partner of the Tui Yuen-soy factory at 34 Portland Street, Kowloon. The first time he saw the plaintiff was in the Chief Justice's Chambers. He had never seen her before and had never dealt with any person by the name of Fook Kee. Although his name appeared on the note it was not his signature. At the time of the alleged loan he was in the country. He did not know the plaintiff's brother-in-law and had never visited 101 Queen's Road East.

In answer to Mr. Macnamara, witness said the note was a forgery, and suggested that the plaintiff was an instrument of one Chan Hing-kau, who instigated the action in order to embarrass him in his bankruptcy investigations concerning Chan.

The case is proceeding.

New York won the nightcap against Pittsburgh, scoring fourteen times on sixteen hits, to four runs and ten hits by the Pirates.
